New York Republicans Think Hoover Best Possible foe for Their Governor.

STRONGER THAN CAL

Think Al Could Attack President Off Inconsistency if He Accepts Nomination

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Buffalo, N. Y.—While the delegates gossip and speculate at Kansas City as to whether Herbert Hoover can carry New York state against Governor Smith, Republican leaders in this end of the Empire state answer with more positiveness than their brethren in New York City that the secretary of commerce is the strongest possible Republican candidate who can be named.

In fact there are Republican leaders in this section who feel that in some respects Secretary Hoover would make a stronger race than President Coolidge. They base this conviction on the idea that the New York governor would make a somewhat heady with an attack on the president's supposed inconsistency if he accepted a nomination after having said that he did not choose to run.

Mr. Hoover's strength in upstate New York is a significant factor because it is the upstate Republican sentiment which is counted upon to overcome the big Democratic majorities that come from the metropolitan district of lower New York.

The Hoover strength is spontaneous. It has a natural momentum. It is not, after all, the manipulated sentiment so often characteristic of organized politics. The secretary of commerce has the backing of powerful spokesmen of the party, to be sure, but he has been growing in esteem with the more independent-minded groups in the Republican party to such an extent that there are signs of a change in the state. His views on water power have found him friends and his advocacy of the St. Lawrence waterway project has given him some active support in the northern tier of counties.

ANSWERS QUESTION

On the whole, the question that Republican leaders are asking now at Kansas City and have been asking for some time—"Who is the best man to oppose Al Smith in New York?" would be answered unhesitatingly by a statement in favor of Secretary Hoover if most of the leaders outside of New York City were consulted. This is the main reason why the secretary of commerce has a hold in the New York delegation. The last of the six district delegates here have indicated their support for Mr. Hoover and when the roll is called, he will have a commanding number of delegates from the Empire state, whereas the only opposition will be from those who still cling to the idea of drafting Mr. Coolidge.

So far as the draft is concerned there is a feeling here among the supporters of Mr. Hoover that he should have ample opportunity to win the nomination without interference from the friends of the administration and that only if it should happen that he can not obtain a majority should the draft idea or the suggestion of a compromise be entertained. The view in western New York is that Secretary Hoover would make a higher Republican vote than any Republican who can be named outside of President Coolidge himself and there are those in the Hoover ranks who would dispute that to some extent, too, and argue that the secretary is really the strongest of the Republican candidates who are to be considered at the convention.

CALL CAUCUS OF WHOLE

BADGER G. O. P. GROUP

Milwaukee—(AP)—A caucus of the whole Wisconsin delegation to the Republican national convention has been called for Monday afternoon at Kansas City by George Vits, national committeeman.

Both the LaFollette and anti-LaFollette delegates have been invited to the caucus, where members of the national committee will be chosen and Mr. Vits, returning from Kansas City Friday, announced that the contest of Ben J. Marcus of Muskegon against Lieut. Gov. Henry A. Huber, LaFollette delegate, had not been decided in sufficient time to permit it to come before the national committee.

At the Kansas City caucus, anti-LaFollette delegates are expected to vote for the retention of Mr. Vits and Mrs. Harry Thomas of Sheboygan while the LaFollette group, which controls the delegation is understood to be planning to vote for Herman Ekern of Madison and Mrs. Rose Meyer of Sauk City.

MUSCLE SHOALS BILL IGNORED BY PRESIDENT

Norris Plans Fight as Cal Fails to Act on Measure Within 10-day Limit

Washington—(AP)—President Coolidge has subjected the Norris bill for government operation of the nation's properties at Muscle Shoals to a pocket veto.

The ten days in which he could approve or disapprove the measure expired at midnight Thursday night leaving it still without his signature.

Although White House and justice department officials have been represented as of the opinion that the bill thus automatically died, Senator Norris of Nebraska, who carried on a long and determined fight for the legislation, challenges the validity of this form of veto.

The constitution, article I, section 7, clause 2, says that "if any bill shall not be returned by the president within ten days (Sunday excepted) after it shall have been presented to him, it shall become a law, in like manner as if he had signed it, unless the Congress by their adjournment prevent its return, in which case it shall not be a law."

Senator Norris holds that Congress is not in adjournment in the sense of the word as used by the constitution. He asserts that inasmuch as Congress will meet next December with the same members and officers, the Muscle Shoals bill became a law Thursday night at midnight.

Upon the question of the pocket veto, the supreme court has never ruled. A case identical with that of Muscle Shoals is pending however and the ruling of the supreme court upon it will apply, it is held, to Muscle Shoals as well.

In this case, a bill involving Indian affairs was given a pocket veto by the president and later carried to the court of claims, which ruled that the president's failure to act had prevented it from becoming a law.

Senator Norris has no intention however, of carrying the Muscle Shoals bill into the courts. If the decision of the court of claims is upheld, he expects to submit another Muscle Shoals bill to Congress.

ACTRESS GRANTED MEXICAN DIVORCE

Dolores Del Rio Given Full Divorce After 4-month Separation

Los Angeles—(AP)—A dispatch from Nogales, Sonora says that a full decree of divorce was granted to Dolores Del Rio, film star Thursday by a court in the Mexican city.

The suit, filed in Nogales April 21, charged incompatibility and followed a trial separation of four months, when Dolores and her husband, the actor, left for New York to pursue his career as a writer. At that time he said he could not continue to live in the film colony where he was becoming known only as "Dolores Del Rio's husband."

Miss Del Rio denied that she would receive a divorce. She said she was recently filed suit for a Mexican divorce from Mary Akin. Miss Del Rio was a member of the party which accompanied Carewe on a yachting trip to Mazatlan, Sinaloa, Mexico, where Carewe's suit for divorce was filed.

GRAB $105,000 IN BONDS FROM PULP MACHINE IN MILL

New London, Conn.—(AP)—A package of negotiable bonds valued at $105,000, missing from the New York Office of the First National Bond corporation since last Thursday, was found in a bale of waste paper at a local paper box plant today.

The bonds had been sent to the corporation by the Union Trust company of Cleveland by registered mail.

On the slight chance that they might be found in the waste paper removed from the office on that day, officials communicated with the company which disposes of the paper and learned that it had already been baled and shipped to the Robert Gair company here.

When one of the bond company officials arrived here today, he was told that six of the 22 bales received already had been ground into pulp. An examination of the other 16 bales was started and before the search had gone very far the envelope containing the bonds was found.

PLEADS GUILTY TO SLAYING TO HELP BROTHERS

Girl Murderer of Basket Manufacturer Enters Plea if Brothers Are Freed

St. Joseph, Mich.—(AP)—The trial of Miss Marguerite Baumbach, of Warsaw, Ind., and her two brothers, George and Edward, charged with slaying Walter H. Cook, Niles basket manufacturer, ended abruptly Friday when Miss Baumbach pleaded guilty to a charge of manslaughter on condition that her brothers be freed.

The agreement came at a conference between Circuit Judge Charles E. White and state and defense attorneys after most of the testimony in the trial had been taken.

Miss Baumbach, formerly Cook's secretary, admitted she fired the shot that killed the manufacturer in his factory at Niles March 30, but insisted she did it after he had struck her with a basket. Her brothers were accused of having prevented interference in the slaying.

Judge White announced when Miss Baumbach pleaded guilty that the sentence would be three to fifteen years in the state penitentiary, with a provision that she would be made eligible for parole after two and one-half years. The court deferred passing formal sentence because of a court room demonstration which broke out among the spectators when the agreement was announced.

The motion of prosecutor George H. Bookwalter, Judge White formally dismissed the charges against the woman's brothers.

3 TO 15 YEARS
Formal sentence to serve three to 15 years in the Detroit house of correction was passed by Judge White shortly before noon. Only court officials and members of Miss Baumbach's family were present.

DAUGHTER OF WEALTHY MAN WEDS CONDUCTOR

Marshfield—(AP)—A millionaire lumberman's daughter and a railroad conductor were on a honeymoon Friday after their marriage here.

They are Miss Marjorie Connor, 23, daughter of W. D. Connor, lumberman and a former lieutenant-governor of Wisconsin, and Albert Rhyner, 25, a conductor on the North Shore line between Milwaukee and Chicago.

The wedding was the culmination of a long engagement. Both were born in Marshfield and had known each other for years. Mr. Rhyner is the son of Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Rhyner of Marshfield.

The couple plan to live in Milwaukee.

FIVE GROUPS OPPOSE RACE OF SECRETARY

Combined Strength of Lowden, Curtis, Watson, Goff, Willis in Opposition

Kansas City—(AP)—The line of battle for the Republican presidential nomination stood clearly defined Friday between Herbert Hoover and a determined, group, organized and pledged to defeat him.

Mobilized to stem the cabinet member's progress toward the nomination, the combined strength of Lowden, Curtis, Watson, Goff and the remnants of the Willis organization has fixed one immediate objective—the blocking of Hoover's selection on an early ballot.

With the forces thus organized the strategy councils of the combined opposition now are canvassing the means by which they can prevent Hoover from getting the necessary 516 nominating votes. The aim of these strategists is to hold intact the votes of their own candidates while endeavoring to wear from the Hoover and doubtful delegations enough strength to keep the issue in doubt.

Analysing Hoover's second-choice support as his weakest point, the opposition forces are searching for a rallying standard toward which that support might be drawn. Some of them have injected the name of President Coolidge as a magnet that they believe might prove irresistible and accordingly have suggested the wisdom of switching some of their own votes to Coolidge on the opening ballot.

The allied leaders defended that theory as a means of maintaining Coolidge as a possibility, before the convention and thus prevent a stampede to the Hoover bandwagon.

Miss Boll, who was disappointed in her first attempt Thursday when the plane was forced back to Roosevelt field by fog, had a long sleep. She left orders that she was not to be disturbed. Neither Oliver de Brouillier nor Arthur Argles, pilots of the plane on its flight Thursday, was up early.

Before retiring Miss Boll said she was too superstitious to start anywhere on a Friday.

A difficulty arose when Lieut. Henry B. Clark, in charge of Roosevelt field, said Thursday's takeoff from the field had been made without his permission and that if necessary force would be used hereafter to keep "troublemakers" out of the field. However, he said if permission to use the runway was asked with proper formality, it would be granted. The field is a private one and has the only runway which would permit a takeoff with a heavily loaded plane.

A possibility that the Columbia might be planning a hop to Harler, Grace, N. E., as the first leg of its trans-Atlantic journey in place of Old Orchard, Me., was seen in the revelation that six caskets of airplane gasoline had been loaded there from St. John. The shippers of the fuel refused to disclose the identity of the purchaser.

FOG HALTS ATTEMPT

Trepassey, N. F.—(AP)—Fog and a light southeast wind prevented an attempt early Friday to lift the monoplane Friendship from the harbor here and start for Europe. The three fliers, Wilmer Stultz, pilot, Louis Gordon, mechanic, and Miss Amelia Earhart, passenger and relief pilot, slept late and it was not until 7 o'clock, local time (6 a. m. Eastern Daylight) that any of them left their boarding house.

At that hour Capt. H. B. Clark, who was in the plane and proceeded to make another inspection of the oil tank in which he repaired a leak Thursday night.

The wind at that time had shifted to east-northeast but was still very light, with indications that there was little probability of its strengthening during the day. This made it unlikely that a hop could be made before evening at the earliest, as a strong wind is needed to lift the plane and its heavy load of fuel.

After repeated efforts to get away Thursday had met with failure, a tank in one of the gasoline tanks was discovered early in the evening and the night had to be again postponed.

The fissure in the fuel tanks, extending nearly an inch in length, was repaired by Lou Gordon, mechanic and third member of the crew, and he said everything appeared to be shipshape for the take-off. Another inspection is to be made, however, just before the start.

The fliers found some solace in their failure to get away when they discovered the seriousness of the leak. Gordon said if they had gotten into flight with the tank undischarged it would probably have resulted in a shortage of fuel, forcing them down somewhere in the Atlantic.

During their experience to get away was inspired by the desire to beat Miss Mabel Boll across was made by Miss Amelia Earhart, Boston social service worker, who is co-pilot of the Friendship.

"I don't wish to be inferred that this flight is in any way a race with Mabel Boll," she said. "Our flight is being carried on independent of any other."

DIVORCED

Dolores Del Rio, well known Mexican star, was granted a full divorce from her husband, Jaime Del Rio in Nogales, Sonora, Mexico Thursday after a trial separation of four months.

WOMEN DELAY OCEAN TRIPS ANOTHER DAY

Mabel Boll Decides to Make Another Takeoff Attempt at Dawn Saturday

Curtiss Field, N. Y.—(AP)—The monoplane Columbia, with Miss Mabel Boll as passenger will probably make a second attempt at dawn Saturday to fly from here to Old Orchard, Me., the first leg of a trans-Atlantic flight.

Miss Boll, who was disappointed in her first attempt Thursday when the plane was forced back to Roosevelt field by fog, had a long sleep. She left orders that she was not to be disturbed. Neither Oliver de Brouillier nor Arthur Argles, pilots of the plane on its flight Thursday, was up early.

URGENT G. O. P. TO MAKE STRONG FARMER PLANK

Kansas City—(AP)—A strong declaration for farm relief along the lines of the vetoed McNary-Haugen bill will be asked of the Republican party leaders in the movement.

The indications are that there will be no McNary-Haugen bill or nothing like it, but the farm leaders will ask for a declaration making it plain that party pledges itself to giving agriculture full benefit on the tariff.

"The gist of the demand, almost completed for presentation before the convention resolutions committee, is that the 'protective tariff must be extended to agriculture in order that farmers may secure the benefits of the protective tariff system.'"

ITALIA FAILS TO RESPOND TO RADIO SIGNAL

Fear Weak Signals Picked Up Thursday by Base Ship not from Dirigible

Madison—(AP)—A radio amateur named Smith of Voznesensk Drinsk, here Archangel, who last Sunday received what was thought to be the first SOS message from the missing dirigible Italia, reported Friday that he had heard a third call from the Noble expedition at 4:14 Friday morning.

Smith said that the call read: "There is no one named Paterman in the crew of the Italia. The name of the radio operator aboard the ship is Giuseppe Biagi."

There was no one named Paterman in the crew of the Italia. The name of the radio operator aboard the ship is Giuseppe Biagi.

Kings Bay, Spitzbergen—(AP)—The Citta di Milano was sending out incessant calls to the missing dirigible Italia Friday but was unable to get any answer. It was feared, therefore, that the weak signals which the vessel's radio operator said he picked up Thursday did not emanate from the missing air ship.

Weak radio signals believed by the base crew to be from the dirigible Italia, missing since May 25, for a time revived hopes Friday that General Umberto Nobile and his crew of 17 had survived, although previous reports of radio messages have been found to be groundless.

"Twice the radio operator of the base ship Citta di Milano heard signals too weak to decipher which he was sure were from Operator Biagi of the Italia," partly Thursday morning when conditions were unfavorable for transmission the first vague signals were "blacked" up.

The base ship operator immediately sent out a message addressed to Biagi telling him to try again at 5:00 p. m. when it would be a little darker and more favorable for transmission.

The operator thought he caught weak signals again at the designated hour.

He was unable to make out what the sender was trying to say.

In the meantime searching expedition which have not yet found a trace of the airship, were augmented by the arrival of Captain Hjalmar Fisher-Jensen, Norwegian Arctic pilot, his plane was placed on the water and he hoped Friday that the fog would lift sufficiently to enable him to go northward hunting for the dirigible.

Fog also prevented Lieutenant Lucioz Holm, Norwegian naval flyer who is off the northern coast of Spitzbergen in the sailing ship Hobby from taking the air.

When Ash was captured he was armed with a huge club. Officers took him into custody after a fierce struggle. He was trying to smash an entrance into the home of Amos Johnson, a neighbor.

VETERAN SOLDIER SCORES CONGRESS

Commander of Veterans of Foreign Wars Speaks at Madison

Madison—(AP)—Congress, prohibition, radical and pacifist organizations and the W. C. T. U. received criticism from Frank T. Strayer, Indianapolis, national commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars in an address Thursday night. He spoke before 600 veterans and members of women's auxiliaries here for the seventh annual state encampment.

He charged Congress with failure to provide adequately for disabled veterans. It would cost $650 to get a man's eyes passed through Congress to make the Star Spangled Banner the national anthem, he declared, adding "that's the kind of people we have in Congress."

Congress is still paying war profits millions of dollars annually, "because they didn't make enough during the war," he said.

In touching on prohibition the speaker declared that 300 men have been killed by federal prohibition of beer, "and there hasn't been a governor brave enough in any state to forbid federal judges taking the cases out of the state."

He challenged his audience to attempt to get a piece of legislation through Congress for the good of the state, "and yet when the W. C. T. U. or prohibition enforcement squads want funds, they get them."

PILOTS FIGHT HEAVY STORMS ON THIRD LAP

Battle Way Through Tropical Twister at Start of Final Sea Hop of Flight

400 MILES AWAY

Monoplane Expected to Reach Brisbane, Next to Last Stop, During Afternoon

San Francisco—(AP)—The four courageous light-hearted men on the monoplane Southern Cross were approaching Brisbane, Australia, from the Fiji Islands Friday after a night of storms that threatened to hurl their flying machine into the vast south Pacific ocean.

With 408 miles yet to fly at 10 A. M., Pacific Coast time, they expected to reach Brisbane at about 2:30 P. M., Coast time, or 4:30 Central Standard time. That would be 8:30 A. M., Saturday at Brisbane.

Storms were reported ahead of the plane, but the blithering messages radioed from the plane indicated that the air-men were confident the 1,752 mile air journey from Nacala Beach, Fiji, to Brisbane, would be completed.

San Francisco—(AP)—Riding out the worst storms encountered in more than 6,000 miles of ocean flying, the monoplane Southern Cross Friday roared on along the 1,720 mile course from Suva, in the Fiji islands, to Brisbane, Australia.

Radio messages from the plane told of battling violent tropical disturbances that pulled and twisted and bounced the ship. One drop of "overboard" was described.

But as on the first leg of the flight, when the ship was pulled downward by air currents between Oakland and the Hawaiian Islands, and was caught in storms on the second leg from Suva, it straightened out and continued to roar on above the threatening waves.

The plane started from Suva, Fiji islands Thursday afternoon with prospects of fair sailing ahead. There were 1,728 miles to cover before the four men, Captain Charles Kingsford-Smith, Charles Ulm, Harry W. Lloyd and James Warner, two Australians and two Americans, should see the calm waters of Brisbane harbor.

The flight went smoothly until nightfall enveloped the plane. Then came a message from Radioman Warner saying "we are running into a squall. It gave their position as being approximately 125 miles out from Suva, altitude 5,000 feet.

Nothing was said about the tenacity of the storm until the 2:15, plane time report, 1:25 a. m. Friday Pacific Coast time.

Then Ulm said, "We didn't want to worry everyone whilst we were in it but now that we are out of it, we will tell you that for the past two hours we have battled the worst weather of the whole flight, at 7,500 feet. Heavy rains, bumps, gave us several drops of over 400 feet at a time. A series of mean tricks on this one last stretch.

So far as I am not through but as soon as moon comes up and blind flying ends we will eat and have a shot of emergency whiskey. Am too cold to write more. Will send later. Cheerio. We'll be O. K."

It was not long before the plane struck its next storm area.

Smith and Ulm on shore heard the signal "Southern Cross" and then heard the plane's generator start wildly upward, the signals were rendered barely audible and then died.

AUTHORITIES RECEIVE KIEFER CASE ANSWER

Madison—(AP)—Reply of Julius Kiefer, Milwaukee attorney, to a complaint filed in supreme court against him by the state bar commissioners, has been received by the proper authorities.

Mr. Kiefer's reply was thought to be in default because it has not been filed within the 30 day time limit. It was learned Friday however, that it was misdirected to Spencer Haven, former attorney general in Madison. Instead of to Hudson, Wis., which is Mark Haven's home, Mr. Haven was appointed by the commission to act for it in disbarment proceedings.

Complaints filed by the commissioners against Kiefer, Raymond J. Cannon, Milwaukee, and Henry R. Gilbertson, of Eau Claire, asked revocation of their license to practice. Mr. Cannon's reply has been filed with Mr. Haven. None has been received from Mr. Gilbertson, who is serving a sentence in state prison for misuse of funds.

CITY HOLDS FAST ON ORDINANCE FOR HIGH-GRADE MILK

City Health Officer Says Most Dealers Already Comply
With New Law

The major portion of the milk being sold in Appleton is salable under the new milk ordinance, it was brought out at a hearing on the law at the city hall Thursday evening. The health officer said that the dealers there were little to the argument that milk produced and sold under the new regulation will have to command a higher price to insure a profit.

Theodore Sanders, city health officer, revealed the bacteria count on seven samples of milk picked up in the city in the last few days. He stated that the bacteria count in grade A milk could be kept under 50,000, as required by the ordinance. Five samples of raw milk tested showed counts of 2,000, 4,000, 20,000, 50,000 and 350,000. All milk except the last, was easily salable under the new regulation.

Two samples of pasteurized milk had counts of 3,000 and 4,000 while two samples of cream had counts of 140,000 and 1,000,000 respectively. One of the first arguments of milkmen opposing the ordinance has been that the bacteria count should be raised to 100,000 on grade A raw milk, because the 50,000 limit was nearly impossible.

Another objection, raised by milkmen was to that part of the ordinance requiring automatic filling and capping machines. It developed that good machines cost between $500 and $600 and, for a small dealer, the forced purchase of such a machine would mean going out of business. L. Hugo Keller, reviser of city ordinances who drew up the milk law, stated he was under the impression a repossessed machine could be purchased much cheaper. The question of the bottling and capping machine will be taken to the council for final determination.

The question of physical examination every 30 days for persons handling milk in the city seemed to perplex several milkmen who thought it couldn't be done.

A small milk dealer objected to the regulation forcing him to quit peddling milk if he cannot pass a health test or if his family is under quarantine. It was explained to him that if he was sick he might go on the route to "break in" some one else but he could not handle either milk or bottles.

Disposition of bottles from families being released from quarantine also brought an argument. The deputy health officer, however, informed anxious dealers he'd see that bottles were turned in to dealers for cleansing as required by the ordinance and not to stores where they would be mixed with other bottles.

There is little difference between regulations laid down by the new milk law and those laid down by the health board of the city of Appleton at the present time, Mr. Sanders informed the milkmen, members of the ordinance committee and the health board, the latter attending the hearing at the request of the committee. The major reason for the new law is that the health officer has something to back him up in his fight for the milk.

The Chicago board of health watches farmers in this section very closely. Mr. Sanders said, and has a paid inspector in the locality all the time. Thursday morning the board warned Mr. Sanders that it was refusing to accept milk from three farmers in the county and when investigation was made it was found one of the farmers was trying to sell the milk in this city. Appleton's milk law is designed to prevent this Mr. Sanders concluded.

Several other changes in the ordinance were suggested by the milkmen and notation made of them to present to the city council when the ordinance is put upon its final passage. The ordinance comes up for final passage June 20.

MILLIONS OF GALLONS OF WATER GO INTO FIRE

Appleton water department is losing nearly a half million gallons of water daily because of the fire which is burning in the S. Superior-st dump. Since the outbreak of the fire Tuesday evening, the fire department has been pouring water into the dump day and night. Lines of hose have been run into the rubbish and the water percolates deep wherever it may be. The rubbish still is burning although there have been no serious outbreaks.

PUBLICITY FOR APPLETON IN WISCONSIN MAGAZINE

Appleton men and institutions play a large part in the current issue of the Wisconsin Magazine, two local people being authors of articles and two local institutions being mentioned in other parts of the magazine.

Prof. William L. Crow of Lawrence college is the author of an article on "A Badger Philosophy of Life." Ralph Culman, former Lawrence student, is the author of two poems.

As the issue of the magazine is called the annual outdoor number, it contains an article on golf clubs in the state, containing a map of clubs with good courses. Appleton is listed in the map. A photograph of the Pride of Appleton, owned and operated by the North American Airways company, is part of an article written by Lee Yorkson, "the flying secretary" of the chamber of commerce at Wausau. Mr. Yorkson's article is "Badger Citizens are Getting up in the Air."

DIRECTED PLAY IN APPLETON STARTS MONDAY AFTERNOON

Five Playgrounds, With Directors in Charge, Ready for Summer

After a week of preparation, Appleton's directed playgrounds will formally open at 1 o'clock Monday afternoon, according to A. C. Denny, supervisor of play for the summer. The six grounds used last year will serve as playgrounds again this summer. They are at the First ward school, Jefferson school, Third ward, McKinley school Fourth ward, Washington school Fifth ward, Columbus school Sixth ward.

The various school buildings will be used as headquarters for directors, and all play equipment on school grounds has been left for use during the summer. Many of the softball diamonds also have been marked off and required.

Children playing at Jefferson school in the Third ward will have access to Playce park according to the plans of Mr. Denny. The tennis courts at the park will be available to children and the smaller youngsters will be taken to the park to play afternoons whenever possible. Playgrounds will open every afternoon at 1 o'clock and remain open until 5 o'clock. They will reopen at about 6:30 and remain open until dark.

The First ward grounds will be directed by Harold "Pete" Brice and Helen Gilman. Directors at other grounds: Jefferson school grounds, Robert Roemer and Florence Hitchler; McKinley school, Raymond Menning and Lydia Becher. Washington school, Mel Helnitz and Ora Zuehlke; Columbus school, Lawrence Bohon and Rosann Marshall. Several of the directors had experience in the work last year and all of them are interested in athletic activities or playground work.

Organization of ball teams and squads for other games probably will occupy the directors the first day. "Gang" ball teams will be allowed to remain intact wherever possible, providing the leaders of the teams report to the directors early Monday afternoon for recognition.

PRESIDENT GUARDED EVERY MINUTE WHILE ON SUMMER VACATION

Secret Service Men Arrange Details for Every Place He Is to Visit

Washington, D. C.—The secret service rules governing the conduct of presidential parties in the past will not be altered when President Coolidge speeds to Wisconsin. It was learned today. A strict program for traffic regulation will be followed wherever the president's train stops and he decides to tour the city to get the train dust out of his lungs.

The rules provide that all members of the presidential party except the president and the first lady must leave the train immediately after it stops at the town to be visited. They must go to the automobiles to which they have been assigned and wait for the president to be seated; the whole party then moves at once.

Such precise arrangements are by no means accidental though it may seem so to the average onlooker. These rules are the result of years of study. The president himself is not always aware of the precautions taken for the unhampered movement of his party and he moves smoothly through dense crowds sometimes not knowing just why.

There is a usual tendency on the part of local "speed cops" to raise the limit when a presidential party goes through a city, but since the fatal accident that occurred on President Wilson's trip in 1919 the secret service has eliminated the practice for the strict safety of the chief executive must be maintained.

The accident on the Columbia Highway, near Portland, Ore., in 1919 made the necessity for the secret service rule that if any car in the presidential party falls out of line for any reason it must not attempt to regain its position until the party comes to a stop. The natural impulse to recover a lost position by "stepping on the gas" is thus removed, and the safety of the party and of the president is assured.

The rule that all members of the presidential party must ride in automobiles of the same number in each city visited further operates against confusion in assignments at stations.

The need for the secret service precautions is only too well illustrated by the accident which occurred when President Harding went to Point Pleasant, Ohio, to participate in the celebration for the Grant Centennial. Point Pleasant, the birthplace of Grant, is some 30 miles from Cincinnati on the Ohio river, and the presidential party was to go by river steamer for the distance. The committee in charge planned an informal reception on board the president's steamer. This would necessitate that the president shake hands with some 2,500 people—as many as pass through the White House on New Year's Day.

The secret service men were against the plan. They knew that there would be danger of overcrowding at one end or one side of the boat. An appeal was taken from the entertainment committee to the president who grumbled a bit but decided to yield to the desire of his protectors.

President Harding took passage on another boat; 2,500 prospective handshakers were disappointed. The prediction of the secret service was correct. Before the excursion steamer reached Point Pleasant, the same part of the deck where the president and

MUNI POOL OPENS BUT ONLY "POLAR BEARS" TAKE SWIM

Although the weather the last few days has not been conducive to good swimming or even a desire to swim, the municipal swimming pool has been open to all youngsters with polar bear leavings. The pool was made ready late last week and is in charge of Mark Catlin, Jr.

Appleton boys may disport themselves on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday of each week, and girls on Monday, Wednesday and Friday. The hours the pool will be open during the day are 9 to 11:30 in the morning, 1:30 to 5:30 in the afternoon and from 7 to 8 o'clock evenings. The pool, this year is being kept in first class condition, and will be cleaned three times weekly.

Mrs. Harding would have stood gave way, and a great mass of people crashed through the jagged timbers. Broken bones resulted. The chief executive was safe.

The desire of presidents to do things to please others sometimes creates emergencies that test the resources of the secret service guarding them. When President Harding was going through the northwest, he agreed to stop at Centralia, Wash., to make a platform speech. It was recalled that at Centralia three veterans of the World War had been killed in an American Legion parade by the I. W. W.

President Harding would not content himself with the speech but insisted on placing wreaths on the graves of the veterans. No arrangements had been made for the ceremony, but the secret service rose to the emergency; they commandeered autos and special police precautions were instituted. The president placed the wreaths but he was never exposed. Of course the secret service was exposed—but that was just a part of the day's work.

Such precedents have equipped the secret service with set rules for entertainment of the president. Once a program has been approved by the White House, no authority can modify it; the president leaves Washington and returns with a minimum of confusion and a maximum of protection.

NURSES' REPORT SAYS SCHOOLS ARE NEEDING BETTER VENTILATION

Other Building Defects Are Heating, Lighting, Drinking
Water and Toilets

Only half of Appleton's school buildings have good ventilation in the opinion of the city's school nurses Mary Orblson and Jane Barclay, according to reports submitted to the city superintendent of schools for the month of May. The report also shows ten of the 14 schools have good heating equipment, ten good lighting facilities, eleven good seating facilities, 12 good drinking facilities and 13 good toilets. About 94 per cent of the teachers in the schools are in good health, the remaining 6 per cent being in poor health.

There were 2,588 children weighed and measured during the month, 1,833 of which were normal, 530 underweight and 65 overweight. The nurses paid 145 visits to the city's 14 schools and gave 58 children complete inspection, 115 partial inspection, held individual conferences with 11 children, had 760 students examined by a physician, 24 by a dentist, excluded 6 children from school, sent notices to 879 parents, gave three class room talks, one to parents at which four were in attendance, gave 13 students first aid treatment, and took 12 temperatures.

There were 23 children found with skin diseases, 138 with bad teeth which were remedied in 17 cases, 204 with bad tonsils, remedied in 16 cases, 11 with nasal breathing defects; three with discharging ears, one with a hearing defect; three with bad eyes; one with a defect in speech; 13 with defective thyroid and 21 with defective cervical glands; 24 with posture defects, five with defective hearts, one with defective lungs, and 26 affected with malnutrition.

The report also shows the nurses visited 124 homes and 121 patients. Nursing care and instruction were given in numerous cases and social service work rendered in one instance. Three children were taken to doctors, dentists, clinics or the hospital.

RETAIL COAL PRICE HOLDS STEADY HERE

Advance of 20 Cents a Ton in Milwaukee Is Not Effective in Appleton

Although the prices of hard coal have been increased 20 cents per ton by Milwaukee coal dealers, Appleton people have the assurance of local dealers that unless a sudden increase affects the wholesale market, retail prices will remain the same up to about August 1.

Coal prices here have not changed since last August, dealers say, although the wholesale prices have increased a few cents per ton. Many dealers are offering a discount of 50 cents for half tons, which was never offered before. At present a discount of $1 per ton is being offered by some dealers.

Hard coal prices are as follows: Nut stove, egg coal, $17 per ton; pea, $14; buckwheat, $11.50; cannel, $17. Soft coal prices are: Pocahontas, forked egg, $13 per ton; Pocahontas shoveled egg, $11; the regular mine run, $9.25; and screenings, $7.50 per ton. Zeigler coal including Elkton and Smithing coal sells at $10 and $14, respectively.

Officials of the company said practically all wires would be removed within the next few weeks but that no plans have been made yet for removing street car tracks.

EMBLEMS AWARDED TO COLLEGE BAND

Members of First Official
Group Honored for Faithfulness of Attendance

On a basis of faithfulness of attendance at rehearsals, 18 members of the first official Lawrence band which has delighted many Appleton audiences and blared rhythmic encouragement throughout the football season, were awarded gold and silver emblems of recognition.

E. C. Moore, director of the band, was awarded an honorary gold key by his pupils. Lola Payne was also awarded a gold key. Silver keys went to Leonard Ziegler, Ernest Gribble, outgoing seniors, and Ernest Engquist, an officer of the organization.

Silver emblems, a degree lower honor than the silver keys, were awarded Hiram Armstrong, Agnes Barless, Jack Benton, Robert Bertram, Franklyn Elise, Marguerite Graess, George Hoslett, John Paul Jones, Dorothy Place, Wendell Rather, Clarence Schwartz, Mabel Sheldon, Lester Voigt, Harold Wurtz, and Helen Ziegler.

The future plan of award will provide for first year players, bronze keys for second year players, silver keys for third year players, and gold keys for fourth year players and for outgoing seniors worthy of special commendation.

The main purpose of the band, according to Mr. Moore, is to provide a training school for instrumental pupils. Regular credits are given for the band course at the conservatory.

Chain Letter Superstition Gripping Appleton Citizens

And there was great wailing and gnashing of teeth—very verily and curses too for once again the insidious chain letter is gnawing at the heels of Appleton: like a looting writer's cramp in its wake, like the seven curses of Bible fame it ravages the superstitious, leaving them stampless and ink-disfigured.

Maybe only children spit in the palms of their hands and knock their palms three times with clenched fists when they see a white horse; maybe people no longer tap on wood three times when they sneeze; maybe little girls no longer chew a bit of thread while someone sews a button on the dress they're wearing at the time; but there is one superstition that still seems to be having a reign as strong as Enslin's king—and that's the superstition of doing as the mystic chain letters decree.

The letters that are weighing the mail sacks of the Appleton postmen were started by a boy in Flanders and are supposed to go around the world three times. Every person that receives one of the letters is commanded to send a copy to five friends immediately and if he does, some great good fortune will come to him within four days. If he does not—the letter does not say what will happen to the malefactor but hints an ominous suggestive warning.

So Appleton people as they make laborious copies of the letters for five friends sometimes comfort themselves with the thought of the luck that is coming to them. And sometimes—well, a diabolic smile curves their lips as they seal five envelopes and address them with the names of their five worst enemies.

POWER TRUST PROPAGANDA

The disclosures being made before the Federal Trade commission, which is investigating the activities of power interests, need occasion no surprise, but they should set the public to thinking on the subject of propaganda in general. The information developed by the commission shows that the alleged power trust has in the last few years succeeded in letting loose upon the country a veritable torrent of "educational" matter designed to create public opinion favorable to its purposes. It has flooded newspaper offices with "stories" relating to its affairs in the hope that some of them would fall for the trick, although we imagine few if any of them have. It has endeavored to conduct propaganda through women's clubs, schools and universities. It has published an enormous quantity of pamphlets and has subsidized research work.

Every possible avenue of operation has been utilized in order to get the case of the utilities before the people in a sympathetic light. The power interests frankly admit that they were influenced in this course by the fact that they were encountering some hostile sentiment throughout the country. Of course they insist that this hostility was based on ignorance and misunderstanding, and they wished to set the public right through a concentrated educational campaign. The facts probably are that the public is in more danger from the power interests than the power interests are from the public. The extensiveness and character of their propaganda of itself supports this supposition. Furthermore, there is real basis to fears, which are more or less general, that the country may be subjected to a power monopoly that will exploit rather than benefit. People cannot get away from the idea that many of these combinations and corporations are merely an adjunct of the money power, projected out of Wall street or some other financial center, with the frank purpose of making hundreds of millions of dollars from organization profits.

The future power supply of the United States, particularly that part derived from hydro-electric development, is of the utmost importance. To whatever extent it is left in private hands it should be surrounded with every possible guarantee that it will be made to serve the public interests. The inference from colossal propaganda such as that which the power utilities have been conducting is that they have something to cover up, or some deception to bolster up. Much of propaganda in general is of that character, and the people may justly look with suspicion upon the employment of artificial methods to obtain their good will.

However, the revelations in connection with the power investigation are only a part of a general condition that applies to practically all great undertakings which deal with the public as a body. The mails are filled with an ocean of propaganda every day. Tons of it are distributed from house to house. Thousands of paid lecturers are abroad preaching the commercial gospel of their employers. Experts are hired to write scientific, learned and popular dissertations which cleverly conceal propaganda. Everybody seems carried away with the scheme where there is even a remote possibility of its succeeding. Newspapers have to be constantly on their guard, but it may be safely stated that they are not deceived. Propaganda sent to newspaper offices invariably goes into the wastebasket, except in the few instances where the newspaper is a propaganda organ.

The facts being brought to light by the Federal Trade commission's investigation of the power interests should serve to put the public on guard, as well as help to identify propaganda in whatever form it appears. It will be the duty of university, college and school boards to scrutinize more carefully the work and character of their professors and teachers, and of organizations to be certain that their public speakers are not mere propagandists. It is all right for the power interests, or any other interest, to present their case in the open, but it is improper to resort to subterranean practices. If public ownership of utilities is desirable or is undesirable, we should be able to determine the question by frank and free discussion.

PAYING CAMPAIGN EXPENSES

It appears from testimony presented before the Senate committee investigating presidential campaign expenses that the postoffice department of the United States is a heavy contributor, innocently, but greatly to its own disadvantage. This is a result of the franking privilege of congressmen, a privilege which one editorial writer says "never withers for lack of exercise."

Speeches and documents to the number of 566,600 have been sent out by Senator Heflin, chiefly dealing with his opposition to Gov. Smith as a presidential candidate. Senator Walsh sent out 300,000 copies of McAdoo's letter endorsing Walsh's candidacy. Senator Sackett franked 185,000 copies of his own speech endorsing Hoover.

Congressman Theodore E. Burton franked 760,000 copies of his address in the house supporting Hoover while Congressman Charles Brand franked 490,000 copies of his opposition speech favoring Willis in the Ohio primary.

These come to a total of somewhere around 1,735,000 pieces of mail, all sent free to the senders, but at large cost to the postoffice department and ultimately to taxpayers. It is probably true that most of those pieces of mail go unread into the waste baskets of recipients. If they served any useful purpose the expense would be of minor importance. As matters stand, the expense is unjustifiable. It has long been obvious that the franking privilege is regularly abused. Either it should be curtailed or the charge for it should be made against congress instead of against the postoffice department.

COURT COSTS, $40,002

Pride, it was remarked long ago, goeth before a fall.

Evanston (Ill.) police the other day arrested a Mrs. W. F. Primley, wife of a Chicago broker, for speeding. She protested that her time was worth $1000 a minute, and that she needed to hurry to complete a shopping trip.

But alas! The judge before whom she was arraigned either didn't believe her or else wanted to inflict a terrific penalty on her. He fined her only $2; but she had to wait 40 minutes before her case was called.

Using her own figures, her appearance in court cost her $40,002.

OF COURSE THE WOMAN PAYS

The male of most animals is a selfish brute and man is an animal in his instinctive nature. This ungallantry of the male of the species, this weakness, this cowardliness, stands out painfully and shamefully in many letters I get from unhappy wives and mothers. Sometimes I suspect that the great conspiracy of silence is not, after all, due to false modesty or prudishness or anything like that, but rather to a deep plot of the noble male of the species to preserve his traditional liberty to cover his treachery with the "double standard," a thing which a lot of women ignobly accept as logical and fair, thus making themselves accessory after the fact of the crime against the generations to come.

A wife writes me, her husband is 36 years old and she is 33. They have been married several years, yet have no children. She underwent some minor surgical treatment which purported to correct impediments the half baked "surgeon" discovered. It was not until the credulous female of the species had subjected herself to a good deal of tinkering and as long as the dear public imagines a good operator is necessary, the physician, no, we shall have such tinkering in the name of "surgery"—that this unhappy woman's lord and master saw fit to betake himself to a physician for examination. Then at last it was found that the noble male of the species was the sterile party. What a travesty on the laws of life!

I have not cited the facts from any individual case, but this is a true composite picture.

Time and again I have stated a plain truth here, namely, that the husband is the sterile partner in at least half of all childless marriages. That being true, it is the rank injustice and a cowardly thing for the lordly male to shift the onus upon his wife's shoulders without cause, as a thought of seeking medical opinion about his own fertility.

No physician or specialist can determine by examination whether a woman is sterile; the best the physician can do is offer an opinion that the woman is normal. But any capable physician can determine by examination whether a man is sterile, and on the basis of his examination the doctor can definitely inform the man that he is not sterile.

Although it is true in many instances of male sterility is the consequence of his own immorality, the effect of disease the man never would have had if he had lived in obedience to the moral law, still, in any case, it is at least equally likely that the man's sterility is the consequence of other causes of which he need not be ashamed. We cannot go into it further, here or by letter, but I want to make it clear that in all cases of sterility in men we must acknowledge that the chances are even that the condition is due to causes over which he has no control or to causes he might have avoided had he played the game fairly.

This is only one aspect of a hideous situation. It is sad enough, without even considering the havoc the ailing female of the species suffers in the form of disease contributed by her noble husband, the misery and unhappiness she endures, the mutilating operations she submits to. The feminine sex is indeed long suffering that the male may enjoy his liberty.

Lady Likes Poison Ivy
I have never had poison ivy. When I was a girl, walking with my grandfather one day we came upon some poison ivy. He broke off a tender little leaf and told me to eat it. I did. He then advised me to eat a leaf of it every spring or often if my mother was suffering from it. When I reported at home my mother had suffered from it for many years. But I have always followed grandfather's advice, and to this day I invariably eat a leaf or two when I first find it in the spring time, and I can handle poison ivy with impunity. When I confess that I thought my own experience might help to reassure your readers, you commented on this in one article and said you hesitated to recommend the method. (Mrs. W. C. R.)

Answer—Thank you for the interesting information. Numerous readers have assured me that they have eaten, usually the berries, time and again, and they seem to be immune. I believe it is the berries, and not the leaves, that are dangerous. I should like to hear from other readers who can report personal experience with this method of preventing ivy poisoning. LIBRARY ADVENTURES

By Arnold Mulder

A NOVELIST ON NEWSPAPERS

S. Fowler Wright, author of "De-Juce," the popular success of which has made Wright a celebrity throughout the English speaking world, gives in his book a series of sociological homilies that often interfere with the story but that are highly interesting in themselves.

A lawyer, by profession and a literature by avocation, Wright does not seem to think highly of our present day civilization. In his novel he makes the earth sink under the ocean, with the exception of a strip of land in England, and while he is telling the story he is constantly going used to be before the flood, the people left on earth had come to grips with reality.

He roundly condemns the law and the courts of justice, the machinery of business, and nearly everything that is connected with the modern life. His interests are obviously sociological and his preoccupation with social questions probably caused him to write the book.

The newspapers are the first to suffer at its hands. After the earth and all its great cities and all its boasted civilization have sunk beneath the ocean, he refers to the newspapers as follows:

"It is a thing almost incredible to tell, but it is simply true, and illustrates the intolerable monotony of their days, that a great industry had arisen back and descended before the dawn of daily information respecting the actions or accidents of their fellowmen, and informing others concerning them, so that every day millions of people dissipated their time in learning (and at once forgotten) that a woman or whom they had never heard before, nor would ever hear of again, had left her husband; or that a husband had broken his wife's head; or a servant had taken his master's property; that a building had been accidentally burned in a distant city; or a child drowned in a river 50 miles away; and even events of much greater triviality were reported in a series of unending monotonies; yet the collection of such details over a vast area gave to their readers, whose intelligences were dulled by the monotony of their existences, an illusion of surrounding incident; and so they would spend their daily time in the absorbing of such vicarious excitement, while the actual conditions concerned is epilepsy. Confirmed epileptics, all authorities advise, should not marry. Marriage and its added responsibilities invariably aggravate the condition.

True many of the greatest characters that the world has known were epileptic both in childhood and in their adult life. On the other hand, the condition is so serious that it may well contraindicate marriage. Doctors Kennedy and Stevenson point out that the various misfits in life, criminals, shut-ins, agitators, and others belong scientifically in a great mass of people who are said to have psychopathic constitutions. That is to say, they suffer with some disorder of the brain cells caused either by disease or by a deficient structure which gets queerer as they grow older.

While these people are not insane in the common understanding of that word, they are a menace of the communities in which they live because they are constantly disturbed by conditions which the more normally minded of the community must see.

Their parents are not entirely responsible for them, since good environment and careful rearing will not solve the problem for most of them. On the other hand, their parents are responsible to the extent that they are born with mental capacities which represent their heredity.

One of the most severe of the conditions concerned is epilepsy. Confirmed epileptics, all authorities advise, should not marry. Marriage and its added responsibilities invariably aggravate the condition.

See-Sawing On Broadway

By Gilbert Swan

New York — Of all the eccentricities indulged in by Manhattan's wealthy playboys, the most amusing was recently introduced by a middle-aged millionaire who carries his own entertainers with him wherever he goes.

Some months ago, while making the rounds of Harlem, this spender heard three negro lunko thumpers whose particular quality of jazz tickled his ear drums. He offered them $50 an evening if they would go around with him and play his favorite ditties while he sipped beer in the speakeaseries.

Each night he appears at a different resort, trailed by his faithful jazz retinue. He puts on his program and entertains the crowd, and when he wears out one place he packs them off to another. His impromptu entertainment has, quite naturally, made a large hit in the upper circles where he is generally to be found.

And there's the wealthy St. Louis business man who decides about once a week to come into New York for a merry evening. He wires for theater, night club and hotel reservations, hops in his private airplane and reaches Manhattan in time for the opening chorus.

And there's a young society man who delights in thumbing his nose at the gay social group. On several occasions he appeared at their functions with a beautifully gowned young woman, whom he introduced as a debutante from a large city in the middle west. Within a short time she had a great crowd of the young aristocrats beaming and rushing her. One night she was seen at a restaurant where she had a great crowd of the young aristocrats beaming and rushing her. One night she was seen at a restaurant where she had a great crowd of the young aristocrats beaming and rushing her.

Recently the chatter of the night club belt has concerned itself with the spendings of a Chicago editor who arrived in Manhattan for a vacation accompanied by a strapping companion who has all the earmarks of a western sheriff. The companion flashed a typical sheriff's badge and appeared to have a gat on his hip. About daybreak the other morn, the bodyguard or whatever he is known as, was seen at a restaurant where he had a great crowd of the young aristocrats beaming and rushing her.

The boys who toss hundred dollar bills around to the chorines are rare, however. Only once in a blue moon does a big spender appear on Broadway with greenbacks loosely dangling from his pockets. Such an event, once more or less commonplace, now creates a minor furore and the news passes down the street from resort to resort.

The owner of a certain mid-Manhattan resort has trained his dog to take bottles of "giggie water" from under the tables of patrons. So cleverly does the bound operate that he is seldom caught and the proprietor is able to make resales. If arguments arise the manager laughs it off by explaining that it's just a cute little trick and proceeds to put the dog through a number of clown stunts.

The American Legion Auxiliary has started a fund for the Legion memorial monument to be erected at the legion lot at Riverside cemetery. Efforts are being made to secure two government markers for two men of the Rainbow division buried in the cemetery.

Delegates elected to the state convention of the Auxiliary on August 13, 14 and 15, at Wausau were Mrs. Rex Spencer, Mrs. Perry Brown, Mrs. Clarence Baez and Mrs. George Hogreiver. Alternates elected were Mrs. A. A. Bunks, Mrs. Harvey Priebe, Mrs. George Buth and Mrs. J. O'Hanlon.

A report of the poppy treasurer showed $203.50 spent in rehabilitation work including fuel, food and cash since Dec. 1, 1927 for disabled soldiers and their families in this city. "This sum did not include clothing, bedding and toys donated by members. Money to carry on the work is secured by selling the poppies. Half of the proceeds of the sale is retained by the local chapters for such work."

The auxiliary will meet for a picnic lunch at 1 o'clock Thursday, June 21, at Pierce park. The lunch will be followed by a short business meeting which will take the place of the July meeting. Mrs. A. G. Kessler and Mrs. Louis Holzer are in charge of the coffee for the picnic and members will bring silver, dishes, sandwiches and one covered dish. Mrs. Clarence Baez and Mrs. A. A. Bunks are members of the committee planning the entertainment. The meeting was attended by 20 members.

Clack! Clack! Clack! And Stitch! Stitch! Stitch!

"STITCH, stitch, stitch, from early morn to dark," sang Thomas Hood in his doleful "Song of the Shirt," and made out sewing to be a very soul-racking pastime indeed. It was fortunate the poet could not have visited the Appleton Womens Club Thursday afternoon, and seen an embryo sewing circle in action, for if he had it would have taken the heart right out of his fiery indictment against the cloak and suit and Singer people. CHARLIE CHAPLIN
SPEAKS IN VIENNA

BY OLIVE ROBERT BARTON
A JUICY bit of news — Charlie Chaplin is lecturing in Vienna this summer on the tyranny of women!

It seems that the women have broken over the traces in other parts of the world besides the United States and that it got so bad in Vienna the oppressed gentlemen had to band together for protection. This league of misogynists is called the "Justitia." It sounds like Latin for justice and we suppose it is.

The idea is to emphasize the emancipation of oppressed husbands. Could anything in the world more entertaining than the mighty male organizing himself into a cohort to demand his rights. Evidently Kipling was right when he wrote that quip about the female of the species. But would have thought it?

To go back to Mr. Chaplin, it seems that he is an ardent supporter of the "Justitia," and after he gets the low-down on the inside workings, he very likely will come home to his adopted country and spin some like propaganda on unsuspecting ladies here.

We remember when dear Charlie, all booted and derbied and ready to go, married a girl of 16. He wasn't afraid of women then. He was taking a big chance.

Well, like Charlie, if personal preferences are in order, we always have liked him, and one of his greatest recommendations is that Fairbanks and company have underwritten him 100 per cent. But we have our doubts about this new stunt. Is Mr. Chaplin taking himself too seriously again, or is he just making a little press agency about his time?

If he pulls off his speech O. K. in Vienna, let's put him on the speaker's list for the next D. A. R. convention. We might set the date for the Fourth of July.

SISTER MARY'S
KITCHEN

BY SISTER MARY

BREAKFAST—Rhubarb sauce, cereal cooked with raisins, cream, crisp whole wheat toast, eggs cooked in the shell, coffee.

LUNCHEON—Shrimp jambalaya, hearts of lettuce with French dressing, sugared fresh pineapple, milk tea.

DINNER—Filets of halibut with cheese sauce, new potatoes in parsley butter, best greens, lemon rind, milk, coffee.

Shrimp jambalaya is a Creole dish, delicious and infatigable. Many of the most popular and expensive restaurants and tea rooms in the largest cities specialize in dishes "a la Creole." However, any housekeeper, if she will learn some of the tricks of seasoning that have been brought to us from other countries, can add variety and unusual palatability to her family table.

SHRIMP JAMBALAYA—Two medium sized white onions, 2 tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons flour, 3 tomatoes, 1/2 cup washed rice, 3 tablespoons minced parsley, half a clove of garlic, 1/2 bay leaf, 1/2 teaspoon chili powder, 4 cups boiling water, 1 1/2 cups boiled shrimps.

Fresh or canned fish can be used, but if any event be sure the fish goes through the center is removed. Melt butter, add onions peeled and minced and let cook slowly until quite brown. Stir over flour and stir until thoroughly blended. Add tomatoes and four browns. Sauté tomatoes, plunge into cold water and slip off skins. Chop finely and add to onion mixture. At the same time, add rice, parsley, garlic, bay leaf and chili powder and boiling water. Let cook slowly about an hour until rice is tender and the mixture is thick. Add shrimps and heat very hot. Season with salt and pepper and serve.

The file powder so often used in Creole dishes is finely powdered saffron leaves and imparts a peculiar pungency and flavor.

Red Is Danger Signal
For The Stout Figure

New York—The old-fashioned princess lines have become stylish once more, revealing curves weher last year there were only slender, straight lines.

But so far there is shown little desire for the fuller figure that once were stylish. Slenderized lines are as dear as ever to the heart of the American woman. And the gown that makes a woman look gracefully slim is the one she will want.

Certain types of gowns slenderize. In plain materials it rests with the cut. In figured patterns the type, color, manner of making and trimming all are features to be reckoned with.

SOLID COLORS BEST

Unless one is sure she looks better in figured materials, I suggest plain colors for the woman of more mature build. Dark colors are preferable, though sometimes pure white is better than a medium shade. Best of all is that combination of dark and light wherein the light is introduced in vertical fashion to break up width. There are certain rules to follow, if one wishes to look slender. First, never have harsh, decided horizontal lines. They cut the figure in half, increasing the width. Tiers often help. But they should slant. In the approved fashion of the moment, V-neck effects are always better than square or round ones, on a stoulish figure. And scarves that band, accentuating the length, are a help.

RED SUGGESTS WEIGHT

Black is ever the friend of the woman who is no longer slender. Dark blue is almost as good. Brown, if dark enough, has almost the same effect. But red, on the other hand, tends to make the figure seem fuller.

I show today three different types of costumes that slenderize. First, the Worth evening gown that is an elegant example of what can be done to give the illusion of slenderness.

Here we have glistering blue paillettes, on graduated tiers, in a lovely soft shade that complements its wearer and detracts from her size.

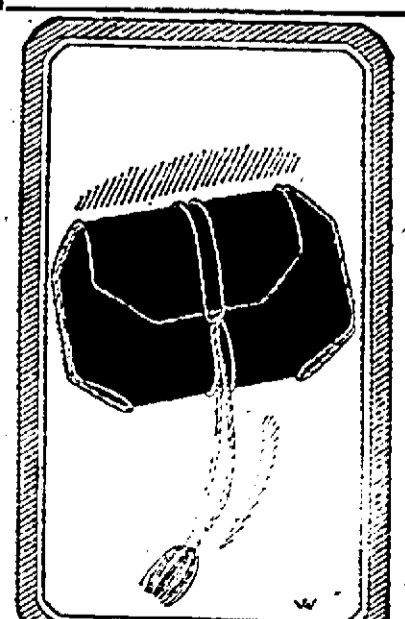

The tiers are circular so that instead of sticking out they fall softly to the figure, giving it the illusion of greater height and less width. The top tier, scalloped as they all are, is almost a bolero. The V-neck, both front and back, tends to give a slimmer silhouette.

The swooping, peacock hemline is achieved by having each tier drop slightly more in the back than in the front. It is an achievement in a gown for the matron who trims her figure down to approximate the debutante's.

Long, graceful lines are employed in the flapper coat shown today, a summer coat designed for the woman no longer slender. Here we have an admirable adaptation of the model idea. The sections of the coat curve in slightly at the waistline, to flare becomingly at the bottom. It is here before in color, of the soft kasha that is so popular this summer.

and
MOM
Their Letters
BY RUTH DEWEY GROVES

Darling Mom:
Don't worry about Pete. I'm watching that bimbo like a hawk. He's too innocent to be true. There wasn't a hint of any change in his manner toward me at lunch. At first I thought everything was the same as before his encounter with Norman, but on second thought I don't see how he could expect to take up our friendship just where it was when I dropped it.

I was very careful not to give him a chance to open up on the subject of his affections. In fact I told him frankly that I didn't intend to accept any more invitations from him. But this once, I said, was just to tell him how sorry I was that my boy friend had been so brash as to start something in the street.

He said he would be pleased to meet my "muchacho" on the field of honor any time. "Muchacho," I gathered, is Spanish for "boy." Well, I got a great idea from his remark. I'll tell you about it if it comes to anything.

After lunch he wanted me to go for a drive with him, but I feared he wouldn't take seriously my decision not to see him again if I did, so I let him buy me a lovely bunch of gardenias and send me to where I wanted to go in his car. I went to Shirley's. You should have seen her eyes pop open when I told her to look out of the window and she saw the car. Then I went down and sent the driver away. I had told him when I went in to wait for me.

I wanted Shirley to see Pete's car because she's always boasting about the imported car she rides in. I was too excited to notice at first that she had a bandage on her head. I thought it was a bandage because she had a ribbon over the gauze.

It seems she got a frightful blow on her head while riding with this boy friend who drives the foreign car. About two weeks ago she went out with him and he wanted to get to a certain inn before it closed. Shirley says she begged him to stop but he wouldn't do it. They hit a bump and she was thrown against the top of the car and knocked unconscious.

Her father says he's going to sue Ted, that's the boy. Must close now and write a note to Michelle.

Dearest love,
MARYE.

THE TINYMITES

By Hal Cochran

READ THE STORY. THEN COLOR THE PICTURE

H. my, oh, my, I'd rather drift," said Clowry. "This is much too swift. I fear our boat will hit a rock. Just see how fast we go. The water's gushing all around. I only wish we'd run aground. Let's try and drag our paddle so's to make it travel slow."

And though they tried it, 'twas in vain. More speed the houseboat seemed to gain. It whirled around, 'mid tossing waves and sometimes seemed to jump. "Wouldn't it be left and then to right, which gave the Tiniies quite a fright. And then they'd all get jotted when 'twould smack a wave kerbump!"

Soon Scouty, too, grew rather scared and with a puzzled look he stared far, far, far ahead, and then he cried, "I fear that this will last for quite a time. I know I'm right, 'cause no calm water is in sight. It makes things look real dangerous as rocks go sailing past."

Just then, however, came a thrill. The boat shook twice, and then stopped still. "We're stuck," exclaimed wee-Coppy. "In some rocks our house is caught. Come on, let's get it out of here, or it will break apart, I fear. And anyway, if we stop now, our trip will come to naught."

"The rapids that we're in right now will, shortly quiet down, somehow. Let's all be brave and move right on to see what is ahead." "Well, after all, I guess you're right," said Scouty. "There's no cause for fright." So, to the task of getting free the Tiniies were led.

They pushed and pushed, but did no good. Then Coppy said, "I guess I should get right down in the water. That may help. We soon shall see." The other Tiniies saw him leap, and found the stream was just knee-deep. And then they all worked very hard to get their houseboat free.

GENERAL OBREGON EXPECTED TO RULE MEXICO ONCE MORE

Calles - Obregon Regime Seems Firmly Entrenched in Politics There

Mexico City (AP)—The Calles-Obregon regime seems firmly entrenched in Mexico.

The present prospect is that General Alvaro Obregon, former president, will again become president December 1, for a term of six years, and that for the second time since the Madero revolution overthrew in 1910 Porfirio Diaz, dictator for 30 years preceding, there will be a change in the Mexican presidential power unaccompanied by violence.

The first peaceful transfer since 1910 was four years ago from Obregon to General Plutarco Elias Calles, the present chief executive. There are some who go so far as to predict that six years hence Calles will once more be succeeded by Obregon.

Any prediction is rash in this land of volatile politics and fiery traditions. There is an old saying, pretty well sustained by historic fact, that the unexpected may always be expected here. Any forecast may not be worth the paper it is written on even a few hours after the writing—much less after a few years.

So, this is not prophecy. It is a report that the prevalent well-informed, unbiased opinion in Mexico City now is that Calles and Obregon are in the saddle with a good firm seat and that a lot of bucking will be necessary to dislodge them—as long as they do not squabble with each other as to which shall sit in front at any given time. As a team they rule the roost. Divided, one would certainly fall, but night, and in either process Mexico could well be thrown into another long period of bloodshed and civil strife.

Many persons consider the Calles-Obregon dominance a good thing for Mexico. Not all think so, but by any means. There are those who would pay almost any price, even that of again plunging the country into disorder that might force foreign intervention, in order to get rid of the pair—even to get rid of only one of them.

Therefore, gossip that there is or may be trouble between them is common enough at the capital. For a picture in true perspective this must be accepted only as gossip. Perhaps to no small extent the wish is father to the thought. Unless Calles and Obregon themselves are rarely skilled in assuming roles, unless they are gifted prevaricators, unless almost every unjudicious observer in Mexico City is badly fooled, they are as close to peace, personally and politically, as they have ever been in their lives. Which has been mightily close. The best guess seems to be they will continue that way. It is the common-sense of the situation, eliminating all other considerations. And both men are full of common-sense and shrewdness.

The presidential elections are Sunday, July 1. Elections are always on Sunday in Mexico. Obregon is the only candidate. There were two other last year, General Francisco Serrano, who was trusted friend and secretary of war during Obregon's presidency, and General Arnulfo Gomez, military governor of the state of Vera Cruz. They are dead now. They were captured and executed as rebels for attempting an army revolt. No one else felt like running against Obregon since—or if anyone has kept it to himself very successfully.

The elections will be held, even with only one candidate. The new president will be inaugurated December 1. Calles will run the dairy farm he has established near Mexico City. He has always loved a farm. He is eager to get back on one. He will be heard if Obregon ever needs him—just as Obregon has been on hand whenever the road was rocky for Calles. It is a system that has worked well so far.

Obregon's actions and utterances indicate he will continue the Calles policy. That does not mean hope has been abandoned for an adjustment of the religious controversy. For the moment the outlook is not encouraging. But friends both of the Mexican government and the Catholic church do not despair of an ultimate formula whereby dignity to each side of the dispute, at least in its acute aspects, may be ended. As to other problems, Obregon thanks to American Ambassador Morrow, will inherit from Calles a much happier situation than has existed for a long time in Mexican-United States relations.

Morrow and Calles are real friends. Morrow and Obregon have hit it off together fine. Colonel Alexander McNabb, United States military attaché, is intimate with Obregon and has been his trusted friend for years.

STAGE And SCREEN

GREAT VARIETY SHOWN IN "FASHION MADNESS"

"Fashion Madness," the Columbia Pictures production which is the attraction at the Elite Theatre for the last times today has Claire Windsor in the stellar role, supported by Reed Howes, Laska Winter, Donald McNamee and William E. Tooker. The locale is the luxurious mansion of a spoiled child of wealth, a private yacht and the Canadian North woods. There are several thrilling sequences, chief of which is a spectacular fall over a precipice with a sheer drop of 1500 feet. This is cleverly handled by Miss Winter. The production was made under the direction of Louis J. Gasnier from a story by Victoria Moore. "Fashion Madness" is sure to appeal to all who enjoy a drama of intense emotion and soul-stirring action. It can be recommended as giving real entertainment value.

CAST OF SPECIAL MERIT IN SUPPORT OF SALLY O'NEILL

It isn't always numbers that make a big cast for a picture, and proof of that is offered in "Bachelor's Paradise," a Tiffany-Stahl feature to be shown at the Elite Theatre tomorrow and Sunday. Sally O'Neill, the star, has in a surprisingly short time won a large following and an enviable reputation in roles that are a reflection of her own vivacious personality. In "Bachelor's Paradise" she is delightfully cast.

As "Bachelor's Paradise" is comedically generously sprinkled with drama and these three roles offering comic possibilities, three former Snodgrass comedians were cast. They are Ralph Graves, Eddie Gribbon and Jimmy Finlayson. For the motherly Irish woman, Sylvia Ashton was selected, while to Jean Laverty, a willowy blonde, falls an amusing characterization. Then there are the three clever Cain kiddies, Violet, Jim and Charles. With George Arohaubaud directing, the picture promises to be highly diverting.

PARAMOUNT'S "GENTLEMEN PREFER BLONDES," A HIT picture, is being shown at the Elite Theatre for a three day run. It is funnier than the book. And that is saying a whole lot for Anita Loos' slim little satire on the American gold-digger and the men she fleeces has established itself as one of the comedy classics of the age. Miss Loos' scenario, which she wrote in collaboration with John Emerson, the playwright and screen director, along with Malcolm St. Clair's direction have done the trick.

And don't let's forget one of the greatest hits ever assembled in a comedy picture. In the first place there is Ruth Taylor, who plays the role of the innocent looking but oh-so-dangerous Lorelei, the gold-digging heroine. Miss Taylor, it is said, was selected from thousands of candidates, and after seeing her remarkable performance last night, there is no doubt that her choice was a happy one. Besides her, there are Alice White, Ford Sterling, Chester Conklin, Trime Friganza, Emily Fitzroy, Holmes Herbert, and a lot more familiar comedy players.

This picture is doubly interesting to those who have read Miss Loos' book, for it elaborates on Lorelei's early life, which was only touched upon in the book. She is seen first on a farm in Arkansas, then in Little Rock, then in Hollywood and so on to New York and Paris where she finally lands America's richest bachelor. How she does it and how she fleeces all the other men with whom she comes in contact are details which should not be divulged. It is enough to say that she "fleeces" them by one with only her innocent air and her wide eyes and guileless manner as weapons.

It is a picture which every woman and girl will love, if their applause and laughter last night is any indication, and it is a picture every man should see, if only to see how he falls into the error of preferring such a blonde.

They became pals when McNabb was stationed in the Arizona border, where he learned to speak idiomatic Spanish as easily as English. With McNabb in the office Morrow could hardly help being friendly with Obregon, or the latter with the ambassador. Of course it may be just a coincidence that Washington sent Mr. Morrow a military attaché who is liked by Mexico's prospective president more than almost any other American. It may be a coincidence—and it may be that Mr. Morrow never overlooks a bet.

WANT PABST TO BE WISCONSIN GOVERNOR

Stalwarts, Fearing Kohler Won't Run, Seek Another Candidate

Milwaukee. — Doubt as to the willingness of Walter J. Kohler of Kohler to enter the gubernatorial race as a candidate of the regular Republicans has started conservatives on a hunt for another prospect. Their first objective, it was learned today, is Fred Pabst, president of the Pabst corporation and a leader in the farm and dairy industry in Wisconsin.

It is the plan of several stalwart leaders to have Mr. Pabst's name go before the G. O. P. state convention at Green Bay on June 20, with a view of securing for him the formal endorsement of representative Republicans from all parts of the state. His views on the matter will be sought by a committee of regulars, who will visit his farm at Oconomowoc tomorrow, it is said tonight.

As a business man of standing, an agriculturist of note, and a man credited with the correct slant on prohibition modification, Mr. Pabst is regarded as the most acceptable candidate for the farmers and wet sets yet broached by the stalwarts, according to those who have charge of the search for an opponent of Gov. Zimmerman and congressman Joseph D. Beck.

HOPE TO GET COOLIDGE CALL

While President Coolidge's secretary has been issuing letters by the score reminding that his employer will be in Wisconsin for a rest and not to make addresses at civic functions and other gatherings, the regular Republicans are in hopes that the President may be induced to attend the Green Bay convention.

According to A. B. Fontaine of Green Bay, the Republican state committee is preparing an invitation in which mayors from twenty-four Wisconsin cities, with numerous civic organizations will join in asking the chief executive to leave his trout fishing for a day and instill new courage in the hearts of the stalwarts at the Green Bay conference.

Mrs. A. Potter will leave Monday for Chicago where she will spend a week with her mother.

CONVENTION COMMITTEE HOLDS ANOTHER MEETING

Another meeting of members of the general committee in charge of arrangements for the annual meeting of the Wisconsin Christian Endeavor union will be held at 7 o'clock Monday evening at the Y. M. C. A. Committee members will discuss a tally of all local members of Christian Endeavor here June 17, and will arrange for speakers to fill the pulpits of the five participating churches, Sunday, June 24, the last day of the convention.

NO APPLETON GROCERS AT CHILTON MEETING

Appleton grocers were not represented at the sectional meeting of members of the state grocers and retailers association at Chilton Thursday evening. Several members of the service store association here indicated following the regular meeting of their organization Monday evening.

Hostile
Horsepower

SO fell Troy, according to the ancient bedtime story. And there's always a smile at the simple defenders who couldn't see through the childish trick of their enemy to get within the walls. Why, the victims themselves actually drew in their destroyer just because it was temptingly left at their gates!

Yes, we laugh at the long-gone incident, but how about the same spectacle, repeated day after day, right before us and in our own time?

Poor, undergraded brands of gas and rank unknowns, offering their hollow horsepower with no more claim to acceptance than mere handiness to the gates. And once within the motor, letting loose their flood of hostile harm-makers to wreak damage and destruction to every working unit in the power line!

Not one escapes. So maybe it's better to learn, rather than laugh, at the lesson from Troy!

Wadham's 370
—the Year-Round Gasoline

is the full, substantial horsepower that it represents itself to be — not a hollow image, packed with the concealed enemies of false starting materials, soggy kerosene and gritty carbon.

Its explosion follows through from the sharp kick of the spark to the end of the crank-throw without a sputter, break or dwindle of power, relieving the power line of every racking shock and devastating chatter.

Its gallon is a real gallon — of quick start, prompt warm-up, speed, power, and motor safety!

GIRL ALONE

THIS HAS HAPPENED
SALLY FORD, 16, ward of the state orphanage since she was four, is "famed out" to CLEM CARSON, who also hires DAVID NASH, athlete and student, for summer work. When Carson makes remarks about David's friendship for Sally, David deals him crushing blow. They run away and join a carnival, David as cook's helper and Sally in a sideshow, disguised as "Princess Lalla," crystal gazer.

In Capital City, location of the orphanage, Sally is recognized when the orphans troop in, accompanied by a beautiful "Lady Bountiful."

ARTHUR VAN HORNE, a handsome easterner visiting in Capital City, sees the "Lady Bountiful." Sally hears him call her ENID BARR and speak of New York. Van Horne is fascinated with Sally and annoys her with his attentions. That night when in a storm the tent collapses, Sally finds herself supported in Van Horne's arms. He tells her he knows she is Sally Ford. During the storm, NITA and an accomplice rob the carnival safe and David follows, recovering the stolen money and receiving a wound which keeps him in his berth for several days. The next day Van Horne speaks to Sally again. He tells her that Enid Barr is a wealthy eastern woman, wife of COURTNEY BARR, and philanthropist with a passion for rescuing fallen girls. Enid asks Sally to read her fortune. Leaning eagerly forward, she says "There's something I'd give anything to know—" But she is interrupted by Van Horne. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXIV
Enid Barr and Arthur Van Horne moved away from "Princess Lalla's" platform together. Enid's golden head held high, her lovely voice staccato with anger, but Sally, although she was guilty of trying to do so, could not distinguish a word that was being said.

Near the front exit of the tent Van Horne was greeted by a party of Capital City society men and women, laden with trophies from the gambling concessions on the midway. He was swept into the party, which Enid Barr refused to join, shaking her little golden head stubbornly and pretending a great interest in the midgeet, "Pitty Sing," whose platform was nearest the exit.

Although Sally was at liberty to leave the tent until the final performance at 11 o'clock, she sat on in her throne-like chair, hoping and yet fearing that the beautiful woman would return and ask her the question which Van Horne's unwelcome interruption had left unsoken.

Enid spoke to "Pitty Sing" in her proud, offhand manner, paid a dollar for one of the midgeet's cheap little postcard pictures of herself, refused to take the change and was turning to read Sally's platform again when Winfield Bybee entered the tent with Gus, the Barker.

Sally, watching Enid, saw the woman's involuntary start of recognition as Bybee crossed her path, saw her hesitate, then turn toward him, determination stamped on her lovely, sensitive face.

When Bybee had bared his head deferentially and was bending over the small woman to kiss her low-spoken words, Sally was seized with fright. She knew instinctively that Enid Barr's questions concerned her, but whether they concerned Sally Ford, runaway from the state orphanage, or "Princess Lalla," fake crystal-gazer, she had no way of knowing. All she knew for certain was that Enid had overheard Betsey's shriek: "That's not Princess Lalla! That's Sally Ford—playing!" And she fled, feeling Enid's eyes upon her but not daring to look back.

There was less than half an hour before the next and final show was to start. She spent the time in the dress tent, wishing with all her heart that she was through work for the day and that she could go to David. Poor David! Lying wounded in a stuffy, hot berth, tormented with worries as to the future and possibly with regrets for the past, while Eddie Cobb strutted on the midway as the hero of the safe robbery.

It would be better for David, infinitely better, if she could screw up her courage to the point of going back to the orphanage and taking her punishment. It would be so simple! She had only to seek out Enid Barr and say to her: "I am Sally Ford! Send for Mrs. Stone." And perhaps Enid would interfere for her, for she seemed so very kind.

"Wake up, Sally," Bess, one of the dancers of the "girle show," called to her, as she came shuffling into the tent on tortured feet. "Gus is ballyhooing your show."

Yes, her mind was made up. She would tell Enid Barr, beg her to interfere with the orphanage for her, and with the police for David. But there was no Enid Barr among the audience at the last show of the evening and even Van Horne was absent. In spite of her good resolutions Sally felt an immense relief. Rejoice! She certainly could not give herself up if there was no one to give her up!

"Going to the show train to see David?" Gus whispered, when the last show was finished and the audience was straggling toward the exits.

"Of course!" Sally cried. "Is he worse? Don't hide anything from me, Gus—"

"Worse!" Gus laughed. "Bybee says he's yelling for food and threatens to get up and cook it himself if they don't give him something else besides mush and milk. Come along! I'll walk you over to the show train. You're too pretty to be allowed to go alone. Some village dude would be trying to kidnap you."

They found David sitting up in his berth, working crossword puzzles. Mrs. Bybee sitting on the edge of his bed to jot down the words as he gave them to her.

"Reckon you won't need the old lady now that the young 'un's come to hold your hand and make a fuss over you," Mrs. Bybee grumbled jealously.

"What's that? What's that?" Winfield Bybee, who had come over from the carnival grounds in a service car, demanded from the doorway. "Been flirting with my wife, young man? Reckon I'll have to put the gloves on you when that crippled wing of yours is O. K. Well Sally, old Pop has done you another good turn."

Sally paled and reached instinctively for David's left hand. "Oh! You mean—Mrs. Barr, the lady who was talking to you?"

"Nothing else but!" Bybee nodded, smiling at her. "She tried to make me admit you was Sally Ford and I acted innocent as a new-born lamb. Told her you'd been with us since we left New York."

"Why is she so interested in Sally, Mr. Bybee?" David asked quietly.

"She 'lowed a carnival wasn't no place for a pure young girl," Bybee chuckled. "She said they was awful anxious over at the orphanage to get Sally back, away from her life in sin, and that person's she took a powerful interest in unfortunate girls and was determined to see Sally safe back in the home if 'Princess Lalla' was Sally Ford. I lied like a gentleman for you, child. Told her she was a nice little dame and all that, but clear off her base in this instance. Reckon I put it across all right, for she shut up and beat it pretty soon."

"I think she's wonderful," Sally surprised them all by speaking up almost sharply. "She's just trying to be kind. She doesn't know how awful an Orphan's home can be."

"Come along, Mother. Let's give these two kids a chance. But you mustn't stay long, Sally. Tomorrow's Saturday, and you oughta be enough of a trouper by now to know what that means. We leave South Saturday night, riding all day Sunday."

"Out of the state?" Sally and David cried in unison.

"Yep. Out of the state. You kids'll be safe then. The police ain't going to bother about extradition for a couple of juvenile delinquents. So long, Dave boy. Don't let this little Jane keep you awake too late."

"That's not Princess Lalla! That's Sally Ford—playing!" And she fled, feeling Enid's eyes upon her but not daring to look back.

There was less than half an hour before the next and final show was to start. She spent the time in the dress tent, wishing with all her heart that she was through work for the day and that she could go to David. Poor David! Lying wounded in a stuffy, hot berth, tormented with worries as to the future and possibly with regrets for the past, while Eddie Cobb strutted on the midway as the hero of the safe robbery.

It would be better for David, infinitely better, if she could screw up her courage to the point of going back to the orphanage and taking her punishment. It would be so simple! She had only to seek out Enid Barr and say to her: "I am Sally Ford! Send for Mrs. Stone." And perhaps Enid would interfere for her, for she seemed so very kind.

"Wake up, Sally," Bess, one of

"I'll leave in 15 minutes," Sally promised joyfully. And she kept her promise. Her lips were smiling tenderly, secretly, at the memory of David's goodnight kiss, when she left the car and began to look about for someone to walk back to the carnival with her, for she was to sleep in the dress tent that night, dried in the sun all day. Gus had told her he would be waiting for her, but she could not find him. She went the length of the train to the privilege car, pushing open the door sufficiently to peep within. At least a score of men of the carnival family were seated at three or four tables, their heads almost unrecognizable through the thick layers of cigar smoke. There was little conversation except an occasional oath, but the steady clacking of poker chips up on the bare tables came to her distinctly.

She closed the door noiselessly and jumped from the platform of the coach to the ground. It would be mean to disturb Gus, she reflected, for he loved poker better than anything except ballyhoo, and there was no real reason why she should not walk to the carnival grounds alone. Of course she would be conspicuous on the streets in her "Princess Lalla" costume and make-up, but it tried to accost her, there was certainly not much danger. She began to run, leaving the train swiftly behind her, but she slowed down to a sedate walk when she had reached the business streets through which she had to pass to reach the carnival grounds. She was crossing Capitol Avenue, at end of which sat the great white stone structure which gave the street its name, when a limousine skidded to a sudden stop and an all-too-familiar voice sang out:

"Princess Lalla! What in the world are you doing out alone at this time of night?"

Sally contemplated flight, but the limousine blocked her path. Before she could turn back the way she had come Van Horne stepped out of the tonneau of the car.

"Let me drive you to the carnival grounds, Sally," he urged in a low voice, completely devoid of mockery for once. "It's really not safe for you to be out alone dressed like that. Come along! Don't be prudish, child! I'm not going to harm you. Remember, I'm not that kind of man!" And he laughed as he almost lifted her in to the car.

She sank back upon the cushions, feeling their depth and softness with a childish awe. The chauffeur started the car, and Van Horne dropped a hand lightly over hers as he leaned back and regarded her quizzically. "I'm glad I ran into you," he told her. "I suppose you've been told that Enid—Mrs. Barr—is hot on your trail?"

"Yes," Sally nodded, her lips too stiff with sudden fright to form the word.

"She's almost convinced that you're really Sally Ford," he told her lightly. "And if she makes up her mind, there's nothing in heaven or hell that can stop Enid Barr. A damnably persistent little wretch! I've never been able to understand Enid's passion for succoring 'fallen girls.' She appears to be such a normal little pagan otherwise."

Sally said nothing because she could not. But her sapphire eyes were enormous and her mouth was twitching pitiously.

"Listen, Sally," Van Horne leaned toward her suddenly, crushing her little brown-painted hands between his own immaculate white ones. "Let me get you out of this mess! I've been thinking a lot about you—too damned much for my peace of mind! And this is what I want to do—"

"Please!" Sally gasped, shrinking far into the corner of the seat, but unable to tear her hands from his.

"Wait till you've heard what I have to say before you begin acting like a pure and innocent maid in the clutches of a movie villain!" Van Horne commanded her scornfully.

"I want to send you to New York, give you a year in a dancing academy that trains girls for the stage—and a year in dramatic school—both at the same time, if possible. You've got the figure and the looks and the personality for a musical comedy star, or Arthur Van Horne is call him 'What do you say, Sally? Think of it! A year or two with nothing to worry about except your studies and your dancing and then—"

Broadway! I'll put you over if I have to buy a show for you. Come, Sally! Say 'thank you, Van. I'll be ready to leave tomorrow.'"

BROOKLYN BATTLERS CUT RED LEAD IN NATIONAL RACE

Doak Bests Pete Donohue To Win 11-Inning Battle By 1-0 Score For Dodgers

Giants Beat Cards, 4-3, and Pull Up to Within Game and a Half of Cincy

Raked by Brooklyn rifle-fire, the Cincinnati Reds Friday found most of the National League pack yelping uncomfortably close upon their heels.

Old Bill Doak, who gave up baseball to gamble in real estate and then decided it was a mistake, pitched the Dodgers to a sensational 11-inning 1-0 victory over the Reds at Brooklyn Thursday night. Meanwhile, the New York Giants ousted the St. Louis Cardinals, 4 to 3, at the Polo grounds and moved up to within a game and a half of the leaders.

Doak and Pete Donohue hooked up in one of the prettiest pitching duels of the season before the final out came. In the 11th inning, with one out, Hendrick was hit by a pitched ball and scored the winning run after successive singles by Heiman and Bressler. Doak allowed but six hits, issued no passes but hit two batsmen. Donohue was touched for only five safeties, walked three and hit one.

Jack Cummings pinch hit in the ninth enabled the Giants to beat the Cardinals, as Larry Benton recorded his ninth victory in 11 starts, all of them complete games.

Pete Scott's home run, a single by Adams and a double by Wagner's double gave the Pittsburgh Pirates two runs in the twelfth inning and an 8 to 6 triumph over the Boston Braves.

PHILLIES BEAT CUBS
The Philadelphia Nationals broke their nine-game losing streak at the expense of the Chicago Cubs. Ray Egan pitched in a 2 to 2, seven-inning game.

Hack Wilson hit his tenth home of the season and went into a tie with Del Bisenette for Brooklyn for league leadership.

The New York Yankees stretched their American League lead to 10 full games by beating the Cleveland Indians, 3 to 2. Babe Ruth hit his twentieth home of the season, and Lou Gehrig his twelfth.

Alvin Crowder allowed but four hits as the Browns defeated the Philadelphia Athletics, 4 to 1, at the Polo grounds.

The Boston Red Sox found Owen Carroll a puzzle and Detroit took a 5 to 2 win at Navin field.

Standing where the Yankees were in Washington, 7 to 5, Bucky Harris returned to the lineup.

AINING CUBS

You'd think that Joe McCarthy would be missing "Sparky" Adams around second base this year, but he isn't. Not with "Mickey" McGuire about. McGuire's a dead ringer for Eddie Collins in looks and action, and he's making the Chicago fans forget Adams. He was with the Giants once and let go because it was thought he couldn't stand the strain physically of playing daily but that strain doesn't seem to be bothering him this year.

VICTORIAN FAVORITE IN BELMONT STAKES
New York. (P)—Some of the east's leading three-year-olds Saturday will face the "barrier" in the Belmont stakes, one of the oldest and richest of American turf classics.

Reigh Count, Mrs. John D. Hertz, Kentucky derby winner, will be unable to start because of injuries suffered in winning the Churchill Downs fixture. As a result, Harry Payne Whitney's Victorian, which triumphed in the Preakness, has been established a heavy favorite.

By winning the Preakness and the Withers, Victorian has earned $33,000 for his owner. A victory in the Belmont would add about $70,000 to this sum.

MICKEY WALKER MEETS ASSASSIN LEO LOMSKI
New York. (P)—Mickey Walker, world's middleweight champion, will meet Leo Lomski, the Aberdeen "Assassin" in a 10-round match at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, on July 4. Humphrey, a pugilist, will referee.

The match, a non-title affair, since Lomski is a light heavyweight, was sanctioned by the New York State Athletic commission provided Walker agreed to come in at his own class limit of 160 pounds.

APPLETON HI LOSES EIGHT SPORT STARS

Three Three-sport Athletes Included and All Eight Are Gridders

When the graduation exercises were completed last week, Appleton high school lost eight sport athletes from its teams of the last few years and the list includes two of the greatest stars to grace the sport spangles of the local school. The biggest losses are Chuck Johnston and Orville Strutz, both three-letter men, though of the remaining six grads another is a three-letter winner and two are two-sport stars.

Johnston, Strutz and Willard Kruse will be lost to all three major events, football, basketball and track. Johnston was a fullback and basketball guard and forward and excelled in the shotput, 100-yard dash and broad jump in track. Strutz was perhaps one of the most versatile athletes the Orange has ever seen. In football he played equally well at halfback and quarterback, in basketball he played both forward and guard in good style and in track he was a sure point winner in both the pole vault and javelin.

Kruse was one of the best grid guards in the conference and also was used in the backfield, a reserve center at basketball and one of the best discus men in the conference in track, besides placing in the shotput, high jump and high hurdles at various meets.

Two-sport men are Byron Bowly, and Bob Roemer. Bowly played quarter and halfback in football and forward in basketball, while Roemer played half in football and was one of the greatest quarter and halfbackers in the conference in track besides being a member of the state's best high school relay team.

ALL FOOTBALL MEN
Football lost the heaviest for besides an entire backfield in Johnston, Roemer, Strutz and Bowly, and Kruse, three of the rearward and lineman, three of the other athletic grads were stellar linemen, making everyone of the eight losses a loss for the 1929 Orange machine. Capt. Ruben Getshow, for the last three years one of the greatest guards in the Valley circuit, is the biggest loss and a half of speed ends, Clarence Hartung and Ronald Redlin are the other losses.

He is Oscar Stoneberg of Tonahawk Wis. Although but 19, Oscar has surpassed the recognized world's record for non-stop hiking. He covered 132 1/2 miles over the pavements of Milwaukee in 25 1/2 hours.

Stoneberg has undergone many years of self-imposed discipline preparing himself for his walking career. He hiked six miles to grade school every day and usually ran home. He thought nothing of walking 40 miles to see a school athletic event.

APPLETON LINKS STARS INVITED TO TOURNEY
Some of Appleton's leading golf players received invitations this week to become part of Wisconsin's representation at the annual interschool tournament links match between the North and Upper Wisconsin Golf Association and the Upper Michigan Peninsula association, which will be played on Monday, June 25, at Iron Mountain, Mich. Because of the distance to the city and the day it is doubtful whether any of the local men who received the bids are Ken Dickenson, a past state champion, H. H. Pelkey and Jack Stevens.

SEVEN BADGERS IN CHICAGO CONTESTS
Five Varsity Men and Two Freshmen Enter Olympic Tryouts

Madison. Five members of Wisconsin's varsity track team and two freshmen left here Friday morning for Chicago where they are entered in the National Intercollegiate track and field championships. None of these men are seriously considered as winners in their events due to the unusual class of the field this spring.

However, these Cardinal athletes may be heard from if they can survive the preliminaries Friday. The seven boys who have been working this week for the national meet are Charles Bullamore, two miles; Ralph Palmhimer, high hurdler; John May, javelin thrower; Milton Diehl, broad jumper; McClure Thompson, mile; Sam Behr and Hal Williams, weight men.

The last two mentioned are freshmen and are eligible to compete only in the trials Friday. Behr will throw the shot and discus while Williams is entered in the hammer throw. Palmhimer and Bullamore are the aces of the Badger long jump and rank among the leaders in their event in the middle west. Bullamore and Palmhimer are running their last for Wisconsin as both graduate this month.

Other seniors on the 1928 Badger team which finished third and sixth in the Big Ten indoor and outdoor meets are Capt. Gil Smith, sprinter; Hunkel and Murphy, hurdlers; Stow, a middle distance runner; Petaja, miler and Braatz, high jumper.

Riverside Fibre and Paper Company's softball team proved no competition whatsoever for the fast moving American Legion machine, which has its strongest team in years, and as a result the Soldiers stepped off with an easy 14-4 victory in a National Softball League game Thursday evening at Jones park. The victory enabled the winners to keep their slate clean and a full game lead on the top position in the loop and it dropped the losers from a lone sixth place to a tie for that post with Co. D. The Riverside men were shutout without a tally until the seventh when the winners helped them to several scores by "clowning."

SMITH STILL LEADS VALLEY SLUG STARS

Star Kimberly Gardner Has .579 Mark; Murphy Tops Appleton

Len Smith, star center gardener of Kimberly-Little Chute's undefeated Fox River Valley League leaders, still heads all batters of the loop by a healthy margin, according to the latest loop averages issued Friday. Len has 11 hits in 19 bats for a .579 mark and his nearest rival is Meliss of Fond du Lac with .538.

Three Appleton batters are in the coveted .300 class led by Murphy, hitting backstop, who is in sixth place among the regulars with a .412 mark accumulated by making seven hits in seventeen bats. Other local men above the .300 mark are Last, .353, Crove, .338 and Schultz, .313. Last Sunday's games evidently have been left out of the averages.

Marks of other Appleton regulars are Goshka, .273; Van Wyck and Tarnow, .250; Baetz, .154; Hillman, .143, Radtke, .067.

KEEP UNDER SURFACE POLITICIANS OUT OF PARTY CONVENTIONS

Situation in 1928 Differs in Many Respects from Previous Years

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington—Sometimes the hand of fate stretches from a smoke-filled hotel room in the early morning hours and picks an obscure third-rater to lead his party, perhaps to victory, in a presidential campaign.

But not this year at Kansas City. It's not a year for the Favorite Sons—the men nobody knows. If a Republican victory in November was already assured, the situation might be different. But the party is going to present the country with the kind of man who already has prestige and large following after carefully determining which candidate has the best chance to win.

For that reason there will be less wire pulling than the electorate has been led to expect at national conventions. There appears to be a notable absence of deep, dark plots. As a matter of fact, those govern political conventions much less frequently than many persons suppose.

In past years, furthermore, everyone knew just who would control a convention—especially a Republican convention. There were Hanna, Penrose, Crane, Aldrich, Quay and such as they. They gave the nomination to the man they wanted nominated and no one else had a look-in.

This year there is less subterranean work going on than ever. It's nearly all on the surface and the Kansas City convention will resemble the election of officers of a large high school class. There will be no group of old school politicians powerful enough and smart enough to manipulate the result. And, assuming that a nomination is not made promptly, it shouldn't be difficult for the innocent bystander to follow the successive steps.

There will be, no doubt, some surprises. There will be a great deal of pressure brought on some leaders whose position is not clearcut. Perhaps there will be numerous hotel room discussions and arguments. But there is no deep stratagem now underway to put over any particular candidate. There are several aspirants and each one has his forces determined to take advantage of the first psychological moment that seems to present itself. Most of the political leaders present will be working for their own best interests and the interests of the party will more often than not coincide with theirs.

No evidence has been produced of the carefully laid plot suspected by many to put over Vice President Dawes. There is Dawes' sentiment throughout the middle west, along with Lowden sentiment. Dawes can have Illinois and Indiana about solid, with a minority of Ohio delegates; if his chances seem good at any time. There is a sprinkling of Dawes sentiment through the east. But the politicians who would like to nominate Dawes are, like all the rest, only waiting to see what turns up—which may be anything if they manage to stop Hoover.

"FASHION MADNESS"

CLAIRE WINDSOR AND REED HOWES IN "FASHION MADNESS" AT THE ELITE THEATRE FOR THE LAST TIMES FRIDAY.

Instead of practicing their arts and wiles behind the scenes, these stop-Hoover politicians will use fearsome whoops and wild threats against the men whose decision will finally decide the nomination. The latter, by force of circumstances, are in a position to jump, be pushed or to refuse to budge.

The most important and most interesting of these political personalities is Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon. This trail but active septuagenarian is enjoying his position of power, for, as everyone knows, the unstructured Pennsylvania delegation will probably be able to decide whether Hoover can have the nomination or not.

The Mellon fun is doubtless cloyed by the fact that he can't make much of any move without the approval of Boss Vane of Philadelphia, who shares control of Pennsylvania with him, but the Keystone states doubtless will function together this year as they have in the past.

Mellon prefers Coolidge or Hughes but would prefer Hoover to Dawes and so, apparently, would Vane. The question is whether they can be talked or scared out of supporting Hoover.

Whichever way they jump, no one need be surprised. Another politician of importance will be J. Henry Roraback, national committeeman from Connecticut and a survivor of the Penrose-Crane-Platt type. Unlike Mellon and Hillis of New York, Roraback will not have to worry about any pro-Hoover insurgency in his delegation. The Connecticut delegation is the most enthusiastic pro-Coolidge group headed for Kansas City.

What Vice Chairman Hillis will be need for heavy strategy. Ex-Congressman James W. Good, his pre-convention manager, is a veteran lobbyist. Bascom Sleep of Virginia presumably will have the negro delegates from the south in hand, aided by Rush Hilliard, former assistant attorney general under Daugherty.

The negro delegates are notoriously slippery, but they will be in capable hands, though Sleep would hardly be likely to stick with Hoover after his chances went on the down grade. It will be surprising if the former Chairman Will Hays of Indiana is not somewhere in the background. Former Chairman John T. Adams of Iowa and former National Committee Secretary George B. Lockwood have been active Hoover workers and will be on the job at Kansas City. All Hoover's leaders, of course, will be desperately determined to prevent the convention from being swayed by the farm state demonstrations.

Lowden's manager, Clarence F. Buck, is one of the Illinois delegates at large. Prominent among the Kansas delegates at large are Senator Capper and William Allen White, who promise that the delegation will vote for Senator Curtis until he releases it. Delegates supporting Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska, led by progressives such as Senators Blaine and La Follette of Wisconsin, will take part in the "farm revolt."

POLITICAL LEADERS QUESTION STRENGTH OF WEST'S FARMERS

Candidates Attitude on Farm Relief Question May Have Big Bearing

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington—The western farmers have beaten their plowshares into question marks.

And those are nearly all that stand between Herbert Hoover and the Republican presidential nomination at Kansas City.

Politicians are asking if the party can afford to take a chance on a candidate whose attitude on farm relief is repugnant to the agricultural state. How effectively the "farm revolt" will be made can only be guessed at this time; political opinion in Washington is widely divided. But these two things can be predicted with reasonable certainty:

1. The convention will not be dominated by the farm leaders, although they are sure to make the most noise.

2. The platform adopted will not endorse the McNary-Haugen bill or its vital equalization principle.

The big question then to be decided is whether the farmers will lose both in their platform fight and their effort to send the convention away from Hoover. The platform can't possibly be allowed to repudiate President Coolidge's stinging veto message. But the farm leaders threaten to walk out on the convention if, on top of that, it nominates an anti-equalization man. CLAIM EASTERN OPPOSITION

Now if Hoover's strength were solid outside the farm belt the convention probably would ride over the farmers' roughshod in both instances. The factor that worries the Hoover men and causes the farm leaders to predict confidently that the delegates won't dare nominate him is the opposition among important politicians in the powerful easterly states which always control conventions.

It is true that some of these states are divided, but the agricultural-industrial states of Illinois and Indiana are strongly against him. And Hoover hasn't a solid delegation in Ohio, New York, Pennsylvania, Connecticut or Massachusetts. The balance of power probably will be held by Pennsylvania, New York and Connecticut, with Secretary Andrew Mellon of Pennsylvania holding virtually a whip-hand.

If a logical compromise candidacy had shaped up, the outlook would not be bright and pretty for Hoover. Vice President Dawes offers the nearest approach to it but he is for the McNary-Haugen plan. The leading possibilities are Lowden and Dawes on the farm belt side and Hoover, Coolidge and Hughes on the other side. Each of these candidates has the bitter opposition of the other faction.

There is, of course, Senator Curtis of Kansas, but farm leaders are bitter against him since he voted to sustain the McNary-Haugen veto.

Kansas City will provide a wonderful show if the farm organization can raise 100,000 farmers to march there and howl—or even half as many. That's what they threaten and no one can tell yet whether this great march of agriculture will become a stampede or a sad fizzle.

There is some talk of a protest against election of Senator Fess of Ohio as keynoter, due to his anti-farm relief record and his failure to be elected a delegate, but it is probable that the first battle will be fought in the platform committee over the party's agricultural plank. There we will find Frank W. Murphy of Minnesota, his state's delegate on the resolution committee and chairman of the legislative committee of the corn belt committee. Murphy is an orator of ability and fireworks are reasonably certain, as he will have able supporters.

Of course it's just possible that huge delegations of dirt farmers, as their leaders hope, will pile into the convention hall and turn the place into a bedlam. But it's hard to imagine a Republican convention thus beset.

The farm leaders, however, hope to block Hoover's nomination in any event. It's difficult to determine just who will loom up as their commander-in-chief but the convention delegates will include numerous known and recognized leaders of farm bodies from Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, Nebraska, Minnesota, North and South Dakota, Oregon and Montana.

Among these outstanding insurgents will be Governor Adam McMullen of Nebraska, who said the west would vote for a wet farm relief Democrat over an unsatisfactory dry Republican and then polled more primary votes than any other delegates; President Earl C. Smith of the Illinois Agricultural Association, Murphy, as mentioned; President Henshaw of the Iowa Farm Bureau; Mark Woods of Nebraska; State Senator J. O. Shaffo of Iowa and President W. L. Stockton of the Mountain Farm Bureau.

If the farmers are completely turned down at Kansas City, there will be considerable third party sentiment

BLAME DISOBEDIENCE FOR DEATH OF SCOUTS

Extra Precautions Taken to Protect Youngsters While at Summer Camps

A survey made by the national council of boy scouts reveals that during the whole of last year, only six fatalities occurred, according to M. G. Clark, valley scout executive. Five of the deaths were due to disobedience of scouts and scout leaders. Two of the deaths were due to drowning, two from infection, and two as a result of foolishness.

With the approach of the 1928 camping season, each scout is being trained and instructed in every means of establishing perfect safety, according to Mr. Clark. A special authorized life saving corps will be on constant guard against fatalities due to drowning, and a discipline committee will be in charge of the boys continuously to see that mischief which is apt to cause serious consequences is abated.

among their leader. That it would materialize is doubtful. That would depend considerably on the attitude of Lowden, who now has his last chance at the presidency and would have nothing to lose but his party regularity should he now bolt.

Ancient Ships

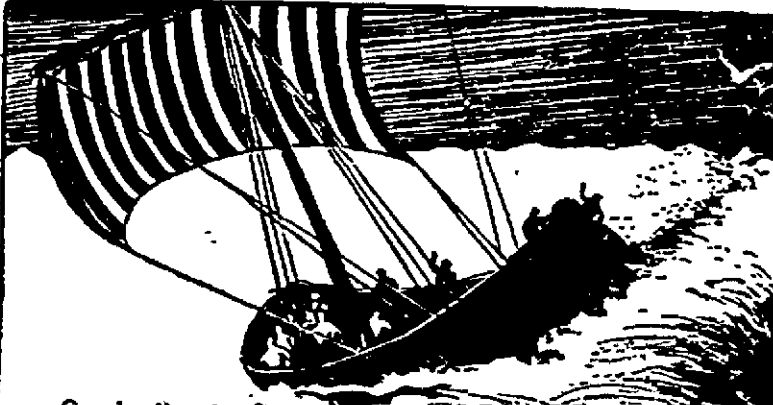

Probably through chance ancient man discovered the use of a sail. Then he added a steering gear to his crude craft. Gradually the vessels took a distinct shape which their builders had copied from fishes or the underbodies of ducks or swans. The artist has sketched here a model of a Nile river boat used by the Egyptians about 5000 B. C.

When there was no wind, paddlers took the place of the dismantled sail. These were slaves, directed by an overseer with a whip.

Someone discovered that rowing gave more power than paddling, so that was the next great change in moving the vessels.

Gradually the Egyptians ventured out into strange waters. About 1600 B. C. Queen Hatshepsut, believing that the god Amen desired her to voyage, started for Punt, or what is now believed to be Somaliland. The expedition sailed down the Nile and into an old canal leading into the Red Sea, about where the Suez Canal lies today. (To Be Continued)

18 OUTAGAMIE-CO PEOPLE ADMITTED TO CITIZENSHIP

Impressive Ceremonies Fol- low Hearing at Courthouse Friday Morning

Eighteen residents of Outagamie-co were made full-fledged citizens of the United States at an impressive ceremony before Circuit Judge Edgar V. Werner at the courthouse Friday morning. Robert Carlson, United States naturalization examiner of the St. Paul office, had charge of the examination.

"Whether you like the laws or not you have sworn to uphold them and it is your solemn duty to keep your promise," declared the judge. "I am glad to see in an address following the admission of the candidates into citizenship."

"Our country is without equal in the world. Your admission into citizenship is something to be grateful for and proud of. You are now a citizen of a country which has one-sixteenth of the world's total population and one-half of the world's wealth."

The Rev. Mr. Nienstedt pointed out that the record of the United States was above reproach and its flag had never been sullied by taking part in an oppressive war or a war for gain.

"All wars participated in by our country were justifiable," Mr. Nienstedt said. "I am proud to be an American citizen and you should feel the same way."

"Set your ideals high enough, cultivate a fear of God and a love of country and you will then be able to obey the laws," Mr. Nienstedt declared.

Mr. Nienstedt pointed out that there were many evils in the United States and he said the divorce evil probably was one of the greatest.

A lack of fidelity to God and the infidelity of wives and husbands were blamed by Mr. Nienstedt for this evil.

George Dame, president at the meeting and Mrs. Emma Hiltcher, president of the Woman's Relief Corps, distributed small flags to the new citizens as a token of their admission to citizenship.

The Rev. A. W. W. Nienstedt led the community singing of patriotic songs and he also sang a solo, America, the Beautiful.

Stewart Counsel Urges Verdict Of Not Guilty

Washington—(AP)—A plea for an instructed verdict of not guilty in the case of Robert W. Stewart, charged with refusing to answer questions of the senate Teapot Dome committee, Friday, confronted Justice Frederick L. Siddons, presiding at the trial of the wealthy oil man.

This entreaty, presented through Jesse C. Adkins of counsel for Stewart after the defense had lost in its contention that the committee lacked a quorum when Stewart appeared, was based upon an allegation that a senate resolution 101, under which the committee was acting, had been passed in violation of the second deficiency bill of 1926, it was claimed, prohibited the investigation.

Further, it was argued that the prosecution had failed to show that the questions which Stewart declined to answer—whether he had discussed the disposition of the Liberty bond profits of the Continental Trading Co.—were pertinent and material to the committee's inquiry. Likewise, it was contended that the government had failed to prove that the committee had tempted "to illicit facts then and there within the witness' knowledge."

In answer to the contention that a quorum was lacking, the government, introduced the minutes of the committee's meeting which showed a quorum to have been present.

After the introduction of this testimony, Justice Siddons granted a motion of the government that defense testimony to the effect that but three members of the committee, five short of a quorum, were actually present in the committee room at the time of Stewart's appearance be stricken from the record.

Stewart, who is chairman of the board of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, would face a maximum penalty of a year in jail, or a fine of $1,000 or both, should he be found guilty.

COUNCIL WON'T KICK ON MAYOR'S EXPENSE

No Specified Amount Allowed but He May Turn in an Account Each Month

Although the city council did not go on record as allowing Mayor A. C. Rude a monthly expense account not to exceed $60, it appeared to be the opinion of aldermen Wednesday evening that such a practice was permissible.

A discussion at a meeting of the committee of the whole revealed that in his capacity as chief executive of the city, the mayor often found it necessary to incur expenses which were for the good of the city; that he often used his car to take committee on inspection trips when the police car was not available, and that it was used on other trips where official city business was to be transacted. Most of the aldermen appeared to approve the move but none of them moved to place the council on record preferring to have the executive file his expense account with the finance committee.

TRENCH DIGGERS FIND OLD COPPER ROUGH BOX

While digging a trench in the rear of one of the new lumber sheds last week, employees of the Hettlinger Lumber company dug up an old copper rough box, believed to have been overlooked about 25 years ago when the old cemetery, formerly located in the ravine back of the lumber yard, was moved. The rough box was in good condition but the coffin and remains were disintegrated. The handles of the coffin found in the bottom of the box, were quite their normal shape and looked none the worse after the many years buried.
